Home, Safety Hard To Realize

Richard Nowalinski finds it difficult to believe he has a Canadian visa. For more than five years after he escaped from his Red-dominated Polish homeland, the diesel engineer spent his time trying to find sanctuary. He was frequently jailed for illegal entry. Nowalinski has now found a home in Victoria. With him is Mrs. William Rogers, 42 South Turner, a volunteer immigration worker, who helped him in his fight to live in Canada.

Cagey B.C. Prospector Risks Curse of Slumach

VANCOUVER (C.P.)—A cunning prospector, risking the legendary curse of Old Slumach, the killer Indian, is picking his way over the craggy mountains northeast of here with clues he believes will lead to the fabulous Lost Creek gold mine.

C. C. Agar, operations manager of Okanagan Helicopters, knows the prospector's identity but is sworn to secrecy. The gold-seeker chartered the helicopter company to fly him into the area and will rendezvous with the pilot again at an undisclosed time and place.

The unidentified prospector carefully studied the stories of the mysterious mine and sifted the evidence from the fables over a period of four years. The stories of Slumach and his mine say he forced eight squaws to carry out loads of gold and then killed them to preserve his secret.

Royal Family May Be Planning To Shift Investments to Canada

Firm Decision Awaits Queen Mother's Visit

BY TOM GREEN

Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—The British royal family is planning to transfer a large part of its North American investments from the United States to Canada in the near future, according to an unconfirmed report in Ottawa.

A similar report recently carried in a New York newspaper, brought no denial from London.

The report also suggests that the Queen Mother, when she visits Washington and Ottawa this fall, will look into the matter before a definite decision is made. The Queen Mother is said to be the custodian of the royal family's personal investments.

A spokesman for the Canadian government said yesterday he is not aware of any such move. Neither is the United Kingdom high commissioner's office. An official of the U.K. information office here said it was the first he had heard that the royal family had personal investments in the U.S.A.

HUGE INVESTMENTS

The investments have been estimated to be valued at from several million to a few hundred million dollars. They consist of real estate, including a large building in the heart of New York; an interest in railways, telephone and other utilities.

Some of the investments are reported to have remained in the name of the royal family since before the War of 1812.

One report making the rounds is that the London brokers in charge of investments for the royal family, understood to be Barclay's Bank, Ltd., have advised the transfer.

Some of the investments are reported to be producing a handsome return annually.

Fighting Expected To Rise

TAIPEI, Formosa (U.P.)

Military observers predicted yesterday that Nationalist and Communist Chinese forces along the southeast China coast would increase the tempo of their fighting during the winter.

There was also a rising fear that Red China might throw her air power against Formosa or its outpost islands before enough jet reinforcements arrive for the Nationalist air force. Two newspapers reported without confirmation that U.S. air force Sabres would be based on Formosa.

Military observers here said the Communists could be expected to step up their raid against Quemoy Island and other Nationalist-held islands just off the coast and that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek would order his forces to lash back with harassing assaults against the mainland.

NOT SERIOUS

An American officer who was on Quemoy when it was raided by Communist commandos last Monday said the raid was not regarded as serious.

He expressed doubt the Communists were ready to launch large-scale attacks at present, but he thought they might throw their potent airpower against the island.

He said there was also no sign the Communists were putting together the forces on the mainland needed for an amphibious assault—landing craft, food and ammunition—and that there had been no sign of heavy troop movements.

CALLED BLUFF

In Miami Beach, Fla., yesterday, U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., branded Communist China's threat to invade Formosa a "mere bluff."

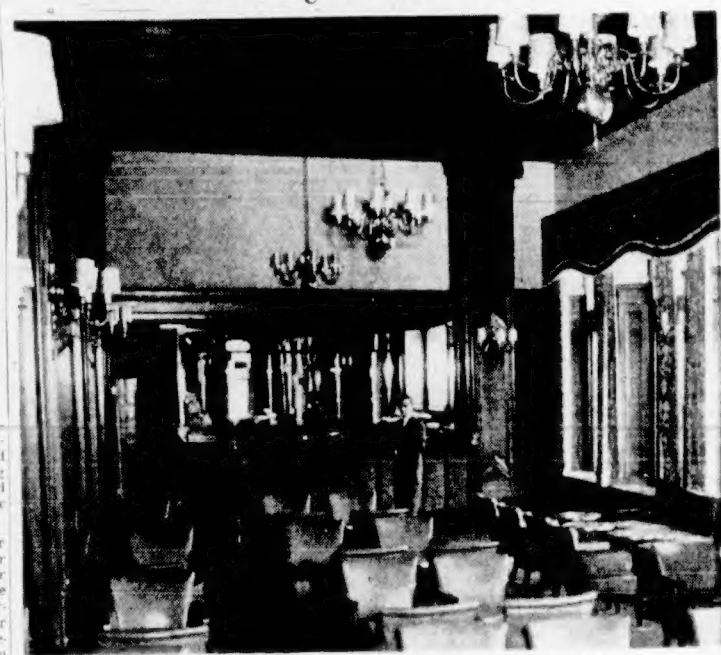

"Personally, I don't believe the Chinese Reds can take Formosa or that they can even come anywhere near doing so," Lodge said.

In a speech before the 10th annual Amvets convention, Lodge suggested that the Communist threat was "designed to take the minds of the millions of starving Chinese off their miseries—in particular the ghastly floods which are devastating that unhappy land."

"Much of the flood damage could have been prevented if the Chinese Reds had been as interested in helping the Chinese people through public works as they are in imperialistic and expansionist war," he said.

The American diplomat also noted that the Peiping government's threat was made "at the time of the recent curious festivities in the Red Chinese capital."

Face-Lifting on Coronet Room

Head bartender Cliff Leslie surveys his new domain.

$85,000 Job Nearly Done

Empress Cocktail Lounge To Be Opened Wednesday

The Empress Hotel's new $85,000 Coronet Room cocktail lounge will open Wednesday morning.

The bar, which occupies the former library, will accommodate 165 to 214 patrons.

Interior design was handled by E. V. Potter of Toronto. "What we have attempted to do is to give the room a face-lifting," says Mr. Potter.

He added that many problems were confronted in attempting to work the design into the general decor of the hotel.

Blue and red are the predominant colors in the oblong shaped bar. Customers will occupy leather chairs and couches in both colors.

A striking carpet, designed by Mr. Potter, has ornate Tudor roses and swallows worked into the pattern. The drapes are patterned "with a modern conception of a Jacobean design," he adds.

Jacobean-style lights are a feature of the room. Several hang, chandelier-like, from the ceiling, while others are bracketed to six massive pillars that line the room in pairs, and to the walls.

On one side the windows look onto the hotel gardens, while a view of the Inner Harbor is available in the farthest corner from the bar.

What promises to be interesting is the "Empress Special." It is rye whisky, pineapple juice and grenadine, served in a sugared cocktail glass, says Cliff Leslie, newly-appointed head bartender, who previously worked in the Royal York Hotel in Toronto.

He is highly pleased with the bar, and thinks it is on a par with anything in Eastern Canada—including the Royal York's in Toronto, and the Chateau Frontenac in Quebec.

Behind the scenes the bar equipment is the latest. Mr. Leslie has recruited his barmen and waiters from the Empress staff and has been training them for weeks in the service bar in the kitchen. The bar should have opened yesterday, but glass doors leading from the lobby were not ready in time.

Wife Run Over To Save Child

CHEBOYGAN, Mich. (A.P.)—Arthur Rapson drove his two-ton truck ten feet up his driveway.

Then to his horror he discovered his 18-month-old son, William, wedged between the front axle and the ground.

William's mother crawled under the truck, but her efforts to remove the child were futile. The baby, beginning to strangle, was turning purple.

Rapson told his wife to stay exactly where she was.

"I couldn't take time to jack up the wheel," he said later. Then he backed the truck onto

Mrs. Rapson's shoulder, enough to free the baby.

On the three-mile drive to the hospital, Mrs. Rapson put her mouth to the baby's mouth and forced her breath into him. At the hospital William was revived with oxygen.

William is under medical care for injuries. His mother was treated for bruises on her back.

Unfinished Business Explains Extension

Reason for the extension of the term of service as Victoria's interim police magistrate for A. I. Thomas was explained by the permanent official, Magistrate Henry C. Hall, yesterday.

Magistrate Hall, who has been holidaying at Sitwigan Lake, had not been aware of Mr. Thomas' continuing appointment from September 1 to 30, when questioned as to the cause when the announcement was made Friday.

"Magistrate Thomas has a number of continuing cases still to dispose of," Magistrate Hall said.

"Mayor C. L. Harrison wrote to the attorney-general's department explaining this situation and the extension of the appointment resulted," he explained.

The suggestion that retention of Magistrate Thomas on the bench might have been a result of criticism of Magistrate Hall from city councillors is thus exploded. The extension of the term is described as "routine."

Magistrate Hall is expected to return to the bench Monday. Continuing cases with which Magistrate Thomas still has to deal include one in which disposal of three pin ball machines seized in a City Hall Stand raid, must be decided.

"In a speech before the 10th annual Amvets convention, Lodge suggested that the Communist threat was 'designed to take the minds of the millions of starving Chinese off their miseries—in particular the ghastly floods which are devastating that unhappy land.'"

"Much of the flood damage could have been prevented if the Chinese Reds had been as interested in helping the Chinese people through public works as they are in imperialistic and expansionist war," he said.

Wanted for Six Murders

Brazen Gunmen Free 'Trigger' Burke In Bold Daylight Raid on Boston Jail

BOSTON (A.P.)—Two gunmen broke into Suffolk County jail Saturday and freed Elmer "Trigger" Burke, notorious New York criminal, in a brazen daylight prison delivery.

Four barriers were breached by the bold pair in entering the jail only a short distance from a busy elevated train station and practically within view of hundreds of pedestrians on busy Charles Street.

The break obviously climaxed a carefully laid plan. Police believe the men worked several days preparing the break into the old jail on the bank of the Charles River.

SIX MURDERS

The escape set off an intensive manhunt throughout New England and New York since Burke is suspected of six murders in Manhattan.

New York City police were quickly alerted, especially commands on the West Side, along the waterfront. Burke reportedly has returned to his old haunts there in the past with reckless abandon.

Burke was awaiting trial for possession of a machine gun, by West Boston Bridge to Cambridge on the other side of the river.

Several main highways in Cambridge lead to western Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine.

Police said the weapon, along with several other guns and ammunition, was found in Burke's lodgings when he was arrested last June.

Prison officials ruefully disclosed that the gunmen—wearing silk stockings over their faces—first broke a lock on a heavy steel door on the Charles Street side and then picked the lock on a thick wooden door.

An electric alarm on the second door did not go off and authorities believe the pair short-circuited it.

With those doors cleared, the men cut through two more to reach the exercise yard.

Precisely at 2:30 p.m., Burke broke away from the "exercise line" of 119 other prisoners and sprinted toward the door.

STOPPED BY GUN Guard James Meade saw Burke's dash and gave chase. As Meade went through the doorway, one of Burke's accomplices stopped him at gunpoint, threatening to "blow your head off."

Burke and his accomplices dashed through the prepared exit route to the street and leapt into a waiting automobile. The car, described as a 1954 Buick, swung into the line of traffic and sped across near-bridge on the other side of the river.

Benny Not Happy Man—Junior's in Driver's Seat

BELLEVILLE, N.J. (U.P.)—Benny Barber thought he won $56,000 on the Irish sweepstakes two months ago but today he is broke and his seven-year-old son is in the family's financial driver's seat.

Benny Ferraro said he signed his name to the sweepstakes ticket when he bought it and then as an afterthought added "Jr."

When the money was wired to a Belleville bank from Ireland Benny tried to claim it but the bank said no. It was Junior's money.

Benny went to surrogate's court and was told he would have to post a $35,000 bond to become legal guardian of the money.

"But the bondsman told me last two months? It'll set us back years."

Even so, Benny managed to chuckle when he thought about his brother, Louis.

Both Benny and Louis bought sweep tickets and agreed that if either of them should win he would split with the other.

"Louis took his family and mom and dad on a two-month vacation to California," Benny said with a grin. "When he got back the other day I told him, 'He got sick.'"

Benny said Benny Jr. has big plans for the money. "He wants to buy bicycles for himself and all his cousins. What can I tell him? He's richer than I am and I'll have to buy him a hike out of my of our savings I spent in the own pocket."

TLC Delegates Urge Employment Action

REGINA (C.P.)—After expressing fears for job prospects next winter, delegates to the annual convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada demanded Saturday that the federal government take action to increase employment.

They passed a resolution asking specifically for a program of federal public works and for encouragement of low-rental housing construction.

Earlier the convention was told of the formation of a new union of civil employees. It is to be one of the largest in the TLC family.

The union will have 12,000 members at the outset, said Garnet Shier of Toronto, expected to be its president. It hopes to boost membership to 28,000 fairly soon, with congress co-operation.

The new organization was set up by conferences in the last few days between the TLC executive and representatives of the Federation of Public Service Employees, headed by Shier.

The 105 local groups, a loose-knit association under direct congress control, will be turned loose to unite under the name of the National Union of Public Employees as of next January 31. The next union will be affiliated with the congress, but its collective membership will have autonomy as a "national" union. Its existing membership in British Columbia is 5,000.

The whole organizing field for civil employees within the TLC amounts to about 80,000 persons in Canada, Shier said. At an initial membership of 19,000, the union would be the fifth largest in the 580,000-member TLC.

The congress also urged efforts be made to make the five-day week general, and also sought collective bargaining rights for federal government employees.

Both Benny and Louis bought sweep tickets and agreed that if either of them should win he would split with the other.

"Louis took his family and mom and dad on a two-month vacation to California," Benny said with a grin. "When he got back the other day I told him, 'He got sick.'"

EL PASO, Tex. (A.P.)—A B-36 bomber crashed shortly before midnight (MST) Saturday night at the El Paso airport. There was no immediate word whether there were casualties.

Pachuco Tells Of Rites

CHICAGO (U.P.)—A former member of the terrorist Pachuco society yesterday told police of the group's secret rites and said one Pachuco gang even had an auxiliary for girls.

Rex Orton, 26, made the disclosures as reports of Pachuco activity spread, involving air force bases and cities across the country.

Orton said he joined the Pachucos while living in Los Angeles, the centre of the society's activity.

TEST OF "DARING" He said he was forced to risk death to gain membership. The test required that he drive without lights over a mountain road at 80 miles an hour while another car without lights sped toward him.

The two cars missed. "That was to prove my daring," Orton said.

Orton broke the secret oath of the society and made the disclosures as police here and in other cities, and authorities at military bases picked up a swelling number of youths branded with the Pachuco tattoo—a cross halved with dots.

Police here seized four more tattooed youths, bringing the total to 24 arrested here in three days.

NOT ALL BONA-FIDE But police doubted that all were bona-fide Pachucos. They said many youngsters had heard of the Pachucos and had themselves tattooed with the mark "just to impress somebody."

Each dot in the Pachuco mark is supposed to indicate an arrest.

Typhoon Nears China

TAIPEH, Formosa (U.P.)—The worst typhoon in five years swerved south of Formosa today carrying torrents of rain whipped by 150-mile-an-hour winds toward the already flood-ravaged China mainland.

The weather bureau said typhoon Ida passed through the Bashi Channel and was expected to hit in the vicinity of Swatow.

Growing Soviet Air Power May Force Increase for U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The growing Russian air power may force an upward revision of its 137-wing goal.

Gen. Thomas D. White, vice chief of staff, told American Legion leaders the Soviets have gone to work "with a vengeance" on A-bombs and the long-range bombers to deliver them. "They need long-range bombers for only one reason," he said, "to be able to hit the United States."

General White said the U.S. is still ahead of Russia in long-range, offensive air power, but that Russia has been closing the gap.

"If the Soviets continue to lower their living standards and to make great sacrifices in order to enlarge their air power, we may have to revise our plans," he said.

General White's statement in the security commission yesterday, a prepared speech highlighted the yesterday's session of the "common popular misconception" that land forces won't be mission. The commission is expected to recommend that the any war, he said, ground must be captured and held, as in the past, by ground forces.

Russian Sea Power Challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Admiral Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations, said Saturday that Soviet Russia's developing strength at sea is a challenge, and the United States must exert itself to keep ahead.

Carney, addressing the national security commission of the American Legion, said the emergence of Russia as "another power on the seas, and one unfriendly to us" is something about which the U.S. cannot afford to be complacent.

FLEET OBSERVED

The navy leader said it is significant to note that 15 Russian cruisers and destroyers — "a force not to be laughed off" — have moved from the Bering Sea into the Baltic.

He said the Soviets realize that any pre-emptive strike against the U.S. will have to be backed up at sea.

From Oslo, Norway, United Press said Norwegian coastal observers reported the Russian warships sailing down the west coast of Norway have disappeared, indicating they may be heading for the English Channel instead of the Baltic Sea.

Informed navy sources in Oslo, however, said the 15 Soviet ships "probably turned around and headed back for Arctic waters on maneuvers."

A navy source added that one part of the maneuver may have been to see how far the Russian ships could go before they were spotted by allied forces.

'All Force' Against Foe, Says Senator

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Senate majority leader William Knowland of California said Saturday that under the administration's "new and realistic reappraisal" of foreign policy, "there will be no more Yalu River sanctuaries."

Referring to the holding of American planes below the Manchurian border in the Korean War, Knowland said, "Communist aggression against nations with whom we have treaty obligations will be met with all the force at our command."

He keynoted a state Republican platform convention which showed signs of making public power a key campaign issue in Idaho.

Girl Too Tough, Abductor Finds

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A scratching clawing nine-year-old girl was "too tough" for a middle-aged man who abducted her from a street Friday night.

The girl was Althea Fong, daughter of Fong Kwong Hoo, an Oakland merchant.

Police said she was found, sweeping on a street corner.

She told the police she was going home from a party at about 9 p.m. when a car drove to the curb as she passed a park.

A middle-aged man jumped out, pushed her and tied her arms with a belt, gagged her and tied her feet with ropes.

As the man drove, the child worked herself free.

She began scratching and fighting her abductor. He struck back at her. She battled so hard she even pulled out his false teeth.

The man drove to the curb and shoved the girl to the sidewalk with the words: "You're too tough. Get out."

About that old prescription Dr. Jones wrote for you two years ago. The bottle is on the shelf in your medicine cabinet, about one-fourth full. It would be safer for you and your family to discard it. Someone might take it by mistake, or a child might be attracted to it by the bright color and do himself harm. Many medicines deteriorate after exposure to light and air. On long standing, some compounds change their chemical structure. Yes, the safe thing to do is to throw it away. If illness again overtakes you, see your doctor. Capital City Grant

SPECIAL interest will attach to announcement when made of the first employment of the capital city grant of $50,000 per annum set aside by the province for the development of the provincial capital here. A six-man committee was set up in April to administer the fund. Three senior civil servants and Victoria's city manager, together with two elected members of the city council form the initial group, whose recommendations are believed to have been placed privately before the minister in charge. Public interest awaits any decision reached.

While a fund for the development of the provincial seat of government somewhat on the lines along which Ottawa is assisted by the federal treasury has been discussed at innumerable sessions of the British Columbia legislative assembly, a start on the scheme finds this community none too well prepared with its own ideas.

There has been little public discussion of the opportunity in civic circles worth mentioning, no call for suggestions and very little public expression of opinion in official circles relative to the matter.

To the present provincial government must go the credit for taking action on the long-deferred issue. Whatever the proposals of the guiding committee may be, they will be received in due course with interest. As the plan, however, is new and far-reaching the province would be well advised to present an open arrangement for the initial stage of the scheme, rather than any cut-and-dried formula not subject to amendment. This is notably a case where ideas should be welcomed from as wide a source as possible. The essential thing about a capital city plan is that it will be a plan, and one capable of being carried through to a satisfying result through a term of years.

Fast Enough, for Now

ADHERENCE to the 50-miles-an-hour speed limit on British Columbia highways is sound policy—for the time being at any rate. Eventually some increase in the allowable speed may become practical, perhaps on certain designated arterial highways constructed to accommodate high-speed traffic, such as Public Works Minister Gagliardi's proposed multi-lane highway from Vancouver to the U.S. border. Generally speaking, however, British Columbia is a long way from being ready for a universal limit of 60 mph. There will be broad agreement with the comment by Mr. George Lindsay, superintendent of motor vehicles, that the terrain does not warrant an increase, though some may feel that he could appended another word, "yet."

Experienced drivers of modern cars capable of doing 70, 80 or 90 miles an hour with relative safety under suitable conditions are apt to regard B.C.'s speed laws as archaic. In some instances perhaps they are; and by many the present limit is blithely disregarded once they reach the open stretches of highway. It has to be remembered, however, that in whatever figure is set there is an invitation to all motorists to drive not just at the permitted maximum but beyond it, usually five or 10 miles an hour faster. Set the limit at 55 and a large proportion of drivers will travel at 55 or 60. Raise it to 60 and they will push the speedometer up to 65 or 70, at which speeds travel on the kind of highways this province now has would become positively dangerous in almost all circumstances.

In British Columbia's road system there are few long, straight stretches such as one finds mile after mile south of the border and in parts of Ontario, where an increase of the speed limit to 60 mph will soon go into effect. So long as this province continues to build highways with only a single lane in each direction it would be folly to encourage motorists to drive faster.

A Storm Called 'Carol'

WHILE tropical storms called Carol may be indigenous to humanity, they are still sufficiently new in the realm of meteorology to evoke attention. The "Carol" of the weather maps last week was reported as the third seasonal storm off Florida, and its movements were charted as to time, place, direction and every other significant circumstance. "Carol" was only a little storm, a mere merry-go-round of wind chasing itself at speeds between 65 to 70 miles per hour, and moving forward leisurely at five miles per hour. Even so, to shipmasters, "Carol" was a disturbance to be borne in mind.

Far upstairs above where "Carol" flaminated, at altitudes in the stratosphere there are bigger and better storms than "Carol" set on their way continually. Some revolve clockwise and others anticlockwise, sweeping perhaps over half of a hemisphere before in the play of natural forces they peter out. By radiosonde reports from half around the world meteorologists have been attempting to plot air movements in higher altitudes. If one day they succeed, man may find at his disposal "trade winds" of the upper air capable of great use in everyday commerce.

Murdoch MacLean

Murdoch MacLean's sudden death will be mourned by many people in the Alberni Valley where his special contribution to the community has been so much appreciated.

During his years in the Alberni he had become a popular figure and had been accepted as the district's own piper, his music forming a link between the Old Country and the new for those who left their native Scotland to make their homes in the far west.

"Murdo" has contributed warmth and color to many occasions with the music of his pipes. By his interest in teaching the young people here the art he learned in his homeland, he has perpetuated a little bit of Scotland in this spot so far from the places he knew as a youth.

Many years from now, the sound of the pipes will recall to someone a memory of Murdoch MacLean.

Walking to School

... Mr. Williston, in effect, says that too many pupils in the past have been transported at public expense to and from school. He has directed school boards to let more children walk to school. Those residing in districts fairly close to schools will be required in future to find their own way there. We agree with this policy completely.

We go one stage further, too. The Review is convinced that everything which affects the public purse should be reviewed and reduced where possible. It's definitely a time to spend less money on non-essentials of all kinds.

Missing the Boat

There is the possibility that Campbell River is missing the boat, in the matter of salmon derbies we mean. No criticism is intended of the local branch of the Canadian Legion, for they have sponsored their own Canadian Legion salmon derby in the past eight years with notable success.

However, serious competition is now entering the hitherto limited field of the "Tyee," the king of the salmon, which indicates that a much bigger promotion is necessary than any one organization in Campbell River—again with apologies and no slight intended to the Legion—is capable of.

We Owe It to Them

The young men of Canada have demonstrated beyond any doubt that they will come forward and volunteer their services when the danger is present and unmistakable. Their willingness to assume this final responsibility in time of war places upon the government an equal responsibility to see that they have a fighting chance of coming back alive. The only answer is training, training to a degree that cannot possibly be provided after war has been declared.

Acceptance of compulsory military service does not necessarily mean that all hopes for continued peace are doomed to failure. The men of Switzerland undergo rigorous military training through most of their lives and none have been called to war for generations. They have much greater reason to hope for continued peace that we have, but they do not relax their vigilance for a moment.

A Life Might Be Saved

According to a report from the fire chief it appears that some car drivers are not aware of their obligations regarding the giving of the right of way to ambulances, fire trucks and police cars.

When fire trucks and ambulances are on their errands, minutes might make all the difference between saving a life and losing it and the sound of a siren or the sight of a flashing red light should be a signal for car drivers to get their vehicles to the side of the road and stop as soon as possible.

Essential Service

... A garbage service has become more of a necessity here in recent years than one would have thought possible at, say, the end of the war. The reason is partly that electric and oil stoves have come into an increasing number of homes, and partly also because sawmills now turn a growing proportion of former waste into more profitable pulp chips.

A garbage service is safe and clean. Chemainus, in North Cowichan's northern end, has made good use of its scheme since its inception. The need in the southern end of the municipality is equally desirable.

Under the Dome

THE magnitude of the proposed Frohisher-Ventures industrial development in B.C.'s desolate north-land is breathtaking, and its impact on our future, incalculable.

When a company proposes to sink a cool $270,000,000 into the healthy young province, harness a few lakes, build a $35,000,000 metallurgical plant on the coastal wilderness and turn idle water into living electrical energy it staggers the imagination of the man with a $50 front lawn.

But the same man nevertheless has a stake in all that water, timberland and power potential. Some feel that he would like to know a little more about it right now before it happens. The silence has been deafening for three weeks.

Captains of industry who control millions have been busy negotiating with leaders of the provincial government who also control millions; but who knows what they are saying?

Last July 27, Frohisher released a detailed report of what they planned to do. The $212,750,000 hydro phase of the development means the harnessing of 200 miles of the Atlin Lakes watershed to produce 880,000 horsepower. The company has already been given a conditional license to go ahead with preliminary surveys.

The ultimate extent of the development could mean production of 4,300,000 horsepower and the investment of a mere $700,000,000. It also means that vast tracts of public land must be turned over to the industrialists.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett and his cabinet have been understandably careful and apparently thorough in their talks with the Frohisher people. But whether the silence on the subject is entirely necessary is a matter of some dispute.

Even a brief progress report, a statement that things were "proceeding according to plan" or a hint of the kind of arrangements being negotiated with the company would be now welcome. It would help to relieve those of opposite political beliefs who are suspicious, those whose fear of political "deals" makes them merely anxious, or those who for no particular reason are just curious.

Some political observers feel that it would be nice to know that this wonderful thing they have heard about is really going to happen and that both the company and the people of the province will benefit mutually.

To see people like Thayer Lindsley, president of the huge Frohisher company, and Louis Reynolds of Reynolds Metals Co. slipping quietly and silently in and out of Premier Bennett's office is both reassuring and frustrating.

Industrial history is being made perhaps behind the sound-proof doors and we can only guess how.

Frohisher was generous a month ago in telling us what they wanted to do. The statistics alone made your head spin—the hundreds of miles, the thousands of horsepower, and the millions of dollars.

One reason given usually for the silence on any big government-industry negotiations is the fear of land speculation and price inflation sparked by too-early announcements of new projects.

This is no problem here. The land under consideration is owned by the Crown.

One official said the negotiations were all on "mere detail"—the technical and legal aspects of the project. But no development costing $270,000,000 and involving thousands of square miles of land can have a single detail that is "mere."

If we are sure the thing is going ahead, some feel, let's now find out when, how and under what conditions.

Ethics of 1954

Several Brooklyn youths are accused of beating aged derelicts to death for no reason but satisfaction of their sadistic impulses. The father of one of them comments: "If my son had done this for money, I could understand it. But just to kill people for fun? No. This is not my boy."

No doubt about it, home is the place to learn sound ethical and business standards.

Britain's Caution Justified

By W. N. EWER, from London

IT IS a chastening and disturbing thought that debates, discussions and negotiations on a plan for a European Defense Community have now been going on for four years and that there is still no end in sight.

Yet four years ago it was regarded as a matter of urgency—action was to be immediate. On August 11, 1950, the Assembly of the Council of Europe passed the famous resolution calling for "immediate creation of a European army under the authority of the European minister of defense, subject to proper European democratic control."

The fact, of course, is that the resolution was passed practically without discussion—in a mood of enthusiasm. "This," said one British delegate to me that night, "means the end of all national armies." Another said: "We have founded a United States of Europe."

There was much scornful comment on the action of some delegates who abstained from voting because, as one of them said, they were "not quite clear" just what they were being asked to vote for.

In retrospect that caution, and also the much criticized caution of successive British governments, seems to have been amply justified. For these four years have been spent in an endeavor—so far unavailing—to give the idea of a European army and European Defense Community a concrete meaning, which would be acceptable to all peoples who were to form the partnerships.

The idea had, of course, double parentage—one idealistic, another practical. For some the community was to be primarily an embodiment of the concept of European unity, a major step towards the creation of a European federation. Others saw in it an ingenious device for providing NATO with much needed troops (German troops) without allowing the recreation in West Germany of a German army under the command of the German general staff and under the control of the German government.

Orphan Airfield

JUBILEE Hospital objected to Lansdowne Road field as an airport. Aircraft taking off would pass over the roof of the hospital, disturbing patients, hospital directors said in a letter to the city.

This was 25 years ago, near the end of August, 1929. People were saying the same things then about Lansdowne Field that they were to say much later about Gordon Road. An airport would be fine, people declared, as long as it was nowhere near them.

There is no doubt that air traffic will be a necessity of the future, but there does not seem to be any necessity why it should be established in a manner to destroy valuable public property," the hospital directors wrote—with sound logic, probably.

"With so much vacant ground in close proximity to the city, another location could easily be obtained..." What happened to all that vacant ground? They built houses on it.

The west was taking the partial failure of the wheat crop "philosophically and with unshaken faith in the future," said a report from Winnipeg as August, 1929, drew to a close.

Seventy people died when the San Francisco-Los Angeles liner San Juan sank after a collision with the tanker S.C.T. Dodd.

There had been riots in Palestine, Russia and China had settled their differences in Manchuria, at least for the time.

In B.C. the Doukhobors were causing trouble again, rioting, staging nude parades. They were marching on Nelson to protest the arrest of one of their number for burning down a school.

Attorney-General R. H. Pooley said the government would deal with the problem "with a strong hand."

was going to be no defying of the laws of the land by these people, and they would have to learn that if they were to remain in the country they must conform to the practices and the laws in force here."

James J. Jeffries, world's champion boxer, flattened Jack Munroe of Butte, Montana, in the second round before about 8,000 people in San Francisco. Headlines in The Colonist called the fight "a farce," and a $30,000 fake. The date was August 26, 1904, just 50 years ago.

From Ponta Delgada in the Azores came this delayed news item: "The little British Columbia sailing canoe Tillikum, of two and a half tons, carved out of the trunk of a tree by an Alaskan Indian in 1843, sailed from here on the 11th of August for London."

"The Tillikum left Vancouver May 21, 1901, bound for Europe by way of various islands in the Pacific..." The canoe is in command of Captain J. C. Voss, who is making the journey with a companion named Harrison.

The schooner Island Queen, Captain Robinson, returned to Victoria after an absence of more than a month, carrying Major Downie and his party which had explored the Queen Charlotte Islands.

This was August, 1859, just 95 years ago. The explorers said there was no gold worth bothering about, and little farm land of any consequence. The thought of timber never occurred to them in those days.

The San Juan boundary dispute was quiet for the time being. Merchants were trying to sort out the confusion of dollars and pounds, shillings and pence which circulated in the colonies.

ardently desire. The Federal Republic, for example, does not become a member state of NATO.

Second, there has been fear that perhaps the existence of the treaty may prove another obstacle to the reunification of the country. Ratification was at last obtained but only after much difficulty and many doubts. And then not by a large majority.

In France, the opposition has been mainly an emotional one—and emotions are in politics often stronger than reasons. There is the first deep reluctance to agree to any sort of German rearmament. There is associated with it a reluctance to admit Germany to an equality of status which might in practice mean a preponderance. Quite distinct from either of these there has been a steadily growing repugnance to accept the idea that the French army with all its traditions and long history should be dissolved and become no more than a memory.

It is these psychological factors which have so far prevented the conception of the European Defense Community from becoming a reality. Perhaps the lesson of these four last years is that no planning is worth the paper unless it takes account of those emotional and often irrational factors which sway men's minds and which therefore in democracies are apt to play a decisive role in decisions of policy. To modify Bismarck's famous phrase "Politics is the art of the psychologically possible." Emotional conflicts are hardest to resolve.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

IN SEVERAL parts of the country there are serious campaigns being waged to promote the better use of hand signals in driving. Some provincial and state governments issue official lists of hand signals, for turning, slowing, passing and other intentions on the part of motorists.

None of them, however, lists a signal for "I haven't made up my mind," or "I don't know what I am about to do." It is the most needed signal of all.

Suddenly the car ahead of you slackens speed. You brake and watch for hand signals. Is he going to turn right, turn left, pull off onto the shoulder, or just stop right bang in the middle of the traffic lane?

No signal comes. Why? Because the poor fellow does not know himself what he is going to do. His three-year-old, in the back seat, has suddenly decided to be car sick down the back of Daddy's neck. Or maybe his mother-in-law has all at once recollected that she left her knitting bag hanging on the chair in the wayside restaurant back there 40 miles. Or possibly a bee has got in the car and everybody is yelling at once. Any number of such domestic diversions could demand the signal I suggest.

Apart from sudden emergencies such as these, there are numerous occasions on which a motorist can't make up his mind in a split second. Very often, a man, or more especially a woman (who has a much more adventurous spirit than men) can't decide whether to turn left or turn right, not because she doesn't know the way, but because she just doesn't happen to be going any place in particular.

Very often, too, a motorist is out looking for the kind of hardware store that might carry, up in their attic, some of those old-fashioned sad irons which, when painted up and decorated with forget-me-nots, make the cutest little door stoppers you ever stubbed your toe on. It isn't every hardware store that might carry such things. And while dawdling through the streets looking for one, the need of the signal "I don't know what I'm doing, or going to do," is manifest.

I suggest it be the arm extended to the full out the window, and the hand wagged limply up and down as well as sideways; a large, loose, dithery signal.

Council of Churches

Instead of the World Council of Churches taking time discussing Communism, which does not exist anywhere at present, many of us would like to hear some of the council's decisions on their own religious problems.

One does not remember that any statement has ever been made by such a religious authority on many religious and theological beliefs which have radically changed in the past 10 years.

Some of my young friends now being educated in modern scientific thought are being lost to the churches because of some of these doctrines which do not fit in with modern teaching. And while they are dropping off from church attendance, the older people, to whom the church seems to cater, are dying off.

One fears that the church will lose out entirely unless such a body as the World Council of Churches will be more outspoken. The world is in sore need of a Church based on moral teaching which does not conflict with modern ideas. Such a church could possibly be the germ of a World United Church for the future benefit of mankind.

Critical Newcomer

Your correspondent Mr. Whitling, says he came to Duncan from England one year ago, during which time he has been a severe critic of our school bus system.

This is downright impudence on the part of Mr. Whitling, since he could not have paid any school taxes. Mr. Whitling now tells us he has left Duncan for Victoria, let us hope Duncan will survive the blow.

Tariffs

The principle of preventing fair, free and equal exchange of the world's products is one of the main causes of the present unrest and bitterness which keeps us so close to the verge of war.

The democracies start out with high-sounding phrases about the equality of all men and then deliberately prevent the underprivileged and less developed countries from trading where they could raise their standards of living by obtaining higher prices for their products. They deliberately impose tariffs to keep others out of their markets, and when this is carried to the extreme of one-way trade, they scalp their customers and will only take money in payment and not goods.

Communism may doubtless destroy freedom, but what is the use of freedom if it is used to persecute and take unfair advantage of the poorer countries? That is no doubt why we have nothing to fight Communism with, except bigger and better bombs.

Both the rival parties need to change their ways if there is to be any real peace in the world.

Nowalinski Case

May I express what I believe will be the sentiment in every good heart in stating my admiration, and offering congratulations to Mrs. Rogers, 42 South Turner, who so steadfastly, with good purpose, espoused the cause of the Polish engineer, Richard Nowalinski, in his anxiety to become a future Canadian.

At no time did Mrs. Turner waver or forget. Her belief in this immigrant's worthiness was carried through to a good conclusion. Her reward will come, inevitably, yet, she did not look for this, but sought with simple and great kindness to befriend her fellow-man.

From Time to Time

From time to time I read letters in the Colonist suggesting that all charity appeals be gathered together in the Community Chest. I would like to point out that many of us do not like some of the organizations in the Chest and we feel that we have a right to give to the appeals which we believe are the right ones.

No group of people have a right to use, civic or government, as was the case with Saturday tags days which in the old days we had plenty of. Now they are but a handful. They are the only way the poorer people can give the little they have, and should be encouraged every Saturday.

I know that during the depression when I had very little I was glad to be able to give that way. I was in Vancouver over the week end and noticed that the top half of a very large building was occupied by the community Chest. It must cost a great deal to run an office like that and when an organization becomes top-heavy there is a tendency to have it become a racket. We in Victoria would not want that to happen.

Each organization has their own way of handling the different grants without a large office staff and most people will give more when the appeals are spread out than they would to one appeal. So let us have the democratic way and give as we would wish to.

Canadian Flag

Nearly everyone agrees that Canada should have an official flag, but on the question of design agreement ceases. A flag is worthless even dangerous, if it increases internal racism or sectionalism. It fails its purpose, too, if it fails to inspire loyalty. A flag that would be truly Canadian's own must be respected and loved from Cape Race to the Pacific and up to the Arctic rim.

In the opinion of this writer, the flag should retain a basic design resembling the red ensign, which would mean a red field. No flag which omits either the Union Jack or the fleur-de-lis would be accepted by Canadians and Canadians alike, and so it would appear to be wise to include the underprivileged and less developed countries from trading where they could raise their standards of living by obtaining higher prices for their products. They deliberately impose tariffs to keep others out of their markets, and when this is carried to the extreme of one-way trade, they scalp their customers and will only take money in payment and not goods.

Founder of Stall Hands Over Reins

Mrs. Barbara Green bowed out of the director's job at the surplus food stall in Victoria's public market yesterday as a new boss, Mrs. Sidney Penny, took over.

Mrs. Green, who is moving to Vancouver Tuesday, urged the people of Greater Victoria to continue "the support they have given me since the stall opened just over four years ago."

As she was presented by her fellow workers with a china cake plate, Mrs. Green said, "It's been hard work, but a lot of fun. I'm going to miss the stall terribly."

Several of the 90 customers presented gifts to Mrs. Green as well.

Mrs. Penny's staff ran into some hectic moments, but overcame them and began planning immediately for the next stall day, September 11.

Customers received potatoes, beans, peas, corn, cabbage, mushrooms, beets, spinach, plums, onions, frozen foods, carrots and some flowers, and $20 in cash donations was used to buy meat, powdered milk and eggs.

CAMP DONATIONS
Many of the vegetables were donated by residents of Sunshine Camp, while the Victoria Labor Council conducted pickups and deliveries and Girl Guides helped out at the stall.

A volunteer is still needed to act as dispatcher between stall days. The woman, who should get in touch with Mrs. Penny, would send donated fruits, meats, jellies and preserves are in low supply.

Mrs. Green, asked about plans to open a stall in Vancouver, said she will "knock off for a while and put in a garden" at her new home.

While the assembly began its debate, Mendes-France held backstage meetings with emissaries from the pro-European army forces.

Couldn't Live without Tornadoes, Scientist's New Theory Suggests

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—A University of Maryland scientist has a new theory which explains the origin of the tornado and identifies it—surprisingly—as one of the best friends mankind ever had.

The world would not be fit to live in if it weren't for the type of air turbulence that brings about tornadoes, says Dr. Theodore Theodore.

Without them, he says, winds would sweep across the face of the earth constantly at the 100-mile-an-hour velocities which prevail in the upper atmosphere.

Buildings would be blown over, vegetation uprooted and life would scarcely be possible.

The new theory, as propounded by Dr. Theodore, is that tornadoes are "merely the largest representatives of the element of turbulence, and turbulence is absolutely necessary to prevent excessive wind velocities along the earth's surface."

Scientists and weather experts are studying the theory as it relates to man's understanding of the atmosphere. It appears to solve the mystery of nature's creation of turbulence and the origin of tornadoes.

The Norwegian-born scientist became interested in tornadoes while studying wind resistance as it relates to airplane wings. That project was done for the air research and development command of the U.S. air force.

Dr. Theodore originated the exact theory of pressure distribution on airplane wings in 1931; the classical theory of wing flutter in 1934 and the theory of the most common type of

Strike Action Delayed

PORTLAND (AP)—The AFL lumber and sawmill workers Saturday postponed until further notice their plan to end a Pacific Northwest lumber strike.

Kenneth Davis, secretary of the AFL union, said pine operators in the Spokane area had not yet accepted a peace pact proposed by Oregon and Washington governors last week.

Davis tentatively accepted the pact last week. He imposed two conditions:

That union locals ratify the pact, which a number since have done.

That both fir and pine belt employers accept the pact.

Davis said the Timber Products Manufacturing Association of Spokane had sent word that a decision on the pact could not be made until the association's executive committee meets in Spokane, possibly next week.

New Meeting In Prospect

PARIS (UP)—Supporters of the European army neared agreement Saturday night with Premier Pierre Mendes-France on his plan to stop the showdown parliament debate on the issue and hold a new foreign ministers conference to draft a compromise.

The French National Assembly began its long-awaited "final" debate on the European Defense Community as Mendes-France appeared to have delivered the last blow to the six-nation army plan.

The premier demanded that any motion to postpone debate include approval of the compromise EDC plan which he took to Brussels last week. It was rejected by the five other European nations.

While the assembly began its debate, Mendes-France held backstage meetings with emissaries from the pro-European army forces.

'Stop March Toward Disaster', World Churchmen Urge Nations

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—The World Council of Churches Saturday appealed to Communist and non-Communist nations to recognize they must "live together" in order to stop their march toward a disastrous war.

Mankind "is sick of it," the council said, "and wants to be at peace."

The council, made up of representative Christians from 48 nations, called on both sides in the cold war to pledge themselves to new "minimum conditions" to lift the threat of "mass destruction on a scale hitherto unknown."

"However deep the conflict may be," the council said, "it is not necessarily an insuperable barrier to living together in a divided world."

In a 6,000-word paper on international affairs, Christian leaders of 161 denominations urged the West and Iron Curtain lands to set these standards as a start.

A conviction that they can "live together at least for a considerable period of years."

Abandonment of "force as an instrument of policy beyond existing frontiers."

Vigorous efforts to "end social and other injustices" anywhere that "might lead to civil and hence to international war."

Continuing negotiations to "reach agreement on outstanding issues," such as international disarmament.

Readiness to submit all unresolved conflicts to an "impartial international organization" and to carry out its decision.

"This limited form of living together can only be a transitional state or a point of departure," the council said. "It must move through an ongoing endeavor to beyond these minimum requirements into an order of genuine cooperation."

The world church body also called on all nations to "pledge that they will refrain from the threat or use of nuclear weapons or other force against the territorial integrity or independence of any state."

Visiting churchmen from around the world say the U.S. is a much more religious nation than they had realized.

And they suggested that American movies and newspapers had helped mislead them about the spiritual qualities of this country.

"Americans are more spiritual in some ways than the people of the Far East," said Miss Dora David, a member of the Church of South India from Palacottam, South India.

FBI Spies On Churchmen

EVANSTON, Ill. (UP)—Undercover agents have been sent by two congressional committees to spy on delegates to the World Council of Churches Assembly, a national religious magazine said Saturday.

The Christian Century, a non-denominational publication, advised delegates that the agents were sent by subcommittees headed by Rep. Harold Velde (R-Ill.) and Sen. William E. Jenner (R-Ind.) and by the FBI.

The premier demanded that any motion to postpone debate include approval of the compromise EDC plan which he took to Brussels last week. It was rejected by the five other European nations.

While the assembly began its debate, Mendes-France held backstage meetings with emissaries from the pro-European army forces.

B-36 Crash Takes Toll Of 24 Lives

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP)—A giant B-36 bomber, approaching Ellsworth air force base for a landing in "perfect" weather, crashed into a knoll short of the field Friday night, killing 24 crewmen.

Three survivors of the crash, worst in B-36 history, were in critical condition Saturday at the base hospital.

The big propeller-driven ship, piloted by Lieut. Col. Wray E. Cotterill, Maplewood, Mo., burst into flames and scattered wreckage over a quarter of a mile on a ranch one mile from the airfield.

Flames which enveloped the fuselage and charred the victims touched off brush fires on the flat country about 13 miles east of this western South Dakota city. They were quickly brought under control.

Cold Water Ends Swim

DUNCAN—Cold water forced Alan Goldie, sports director of the Chemainus Community Centre, to abandon a 3½-mile swim from Active Point on Kuper Island to the Chemainus beach Saturday, after he had covered about two miles.

Goldie was taken from the water after one hour, 17 minutes and 43 seconds. He had been swimming strongly just a few minutes before being lifted from the water, but finally had to give in to the cold which had numbed his arms and congealed the special swimmer's grease to the consistency of plastic.

He was physically all right except for the numbing coldness and was rushed from the water to a series of hot baths. He started the swim from Active Point at 10:12 a.m. under cloudy skies and cool air temperature.

He did not use grease on his face and complained of a violent headache when picked up. The swimmer's grease was donated by a paint company. It would normally have cost the community centre $90—at $15 a pound for the six pounds used.

Accompanying the swimmer in a small boat were

Frank Goldie, Alan's father, and Dick Duncan, Chemainus mill first-aid man.

On the Chemainus Yarder, tug loaned by the Chemainus Towing Co., were reporters, the official timer and a TV cameraman, who took 100 feet of film which will be televised over CBUT Monday evening, between 6:30 and 7:15.

Soon after leaving Kuper Island Goldie had to swim through a heavy bed of kelp and he was in a cold water current when taken from the water.

Local experts say that had the swim been undertaken last month there would have been no difficulty in making it, because conditions were much better then.

It is reported that over the last 20 years probably 15 people have made the swim to the island, rested and returned, but under ideal conditions.

Cemetery Site Approved

NANAIMO—The appeal board for Nanaimo regulated area, which heard the application of the City of Nanaimo for permission to use 20 acres of the city-owned Behan property as a cemetery, has forwarded its approval to the minister of municipal affairs in Victoria.

Entries in all divisions of the Metochios and Luxton fair are heavy, organizers of the September 11 event reported yesterday.

There are perpetual trophies for vegetables, field crops, dairy products, rabbits, poultry, and one for the winner of most points in the women's division.

The fair will be officially opened by H. J. Bruch, MLA for Esquimalt, at 2 p.m.

The junior section includes cooking, sewing, handicrafts, poultry and animal displays, and vegetable and flower collections. There are perpetual trophies for six to 10-year-olds, and for 11 to 16-year-olds.

O. M. Finney is fair manager and entry secretary at H. W. Hobbs, Happy Valley Road, 8-3606.

At the time Mayor George Muir presented the city's case to the board, ratepayers of Northfield district protested the use of the site as a cemetery.

A petition against the request was signed by 130 of the 200 ratepayers in the Northfield fire protection district.

The appeal board consists of H. R. Perkins, acting chairman; William Wear, Wellington; H. A. M. Digson, Lantzville; and W. Perry, Chase River.

Speaking for the Northfield residents were G. H. Dobbs, H. Gerlock, Mrs. I. Willgress and Mrs. W. Good.

Mayor Muir said Saturday the city is now awaiting final word from the provincial government on the application.

VIEW ROYAL—Arrangements for the View Royal Garden Club fall show to be held September 11 at the community hall are in full swing.

Catalogues and entry forms were distributed at the regular monthly meeting of the garden club Friday evening, and other forms will be mailed to members.

One of the highlights of the show will be a colorful display of fuchsias grown by J. H. C. Palmer, 357 Sooke Road. Members were treated at the meeting to a preview display of 18 varieties of fuchsias.

Two colored films were shown at the meeting, "Northward Bound" and "Johnny's Heritage."

The films, dealing with development of the north and modern industries throughout B.C., showed the manufacture of gloves, carpets, plywood, boxes, barrels and insulation, salmon being caught and canned, metal being processed and power-plant operations.

Duncan D. McTavish, chairman of the club, announced that prizes will be awarded to all first and second winners in each section of the fall show. These prizes will be plants from William Goddard's Flora Vista Gardens.

Host, Guests on 'Cruise of Kings'

King Paul of Greece (in white) is shown with some of his royal guests on the dock just before the Greek luxury liner, the Ss. Agamemnon, left Naples, Italy, on the "cruise of kings." The 12-day cruise through the Mediterranean for 102 members of Europe's royal families, was organized by King Paul and Queen Frederika of Greece to publicize the tourist attractions of their country. Flanking King Paul and his wife, Frederika, are Juan of Spain (left), and ex-King Michael of Rumania. At left is the Duchess of Aosta. (Central Press Canadian.)

The royal cruise was planned by King Paul as a boost to Greece's tourist trade and as a chance to bring together Europe's royalty, which rarely meets nowadays except at funerals and weddings.

Scientists Find Old Jawbones

ALGIERS (AP)—French scientists, digging in this part of Africa for more than 80 years, have been rewarded by two jawbones which may belong to the earliest tool-wielding humans yet unearthed.

This ape-like creature has been named "Palikao man" after a village near the diggings. He appears to have roamed the southern shores of the Mediterranean as many as 600,000 years ago.

FIRST FIND—Prof. Camille Arambourg of the Paris Natural History Museum heads the expedition. Scientists working with him have explained this is the first time remains and tools have been found in the company of fossil animals dated so early.

They belong to what scientists call the Acheulean and Chellean or Abbevillian periods. The famous Peeping man and Java man are of later date.

Palikao is about 10 miles from Mascara, a busy commercial town in a rich fruit-growing region, famous for its wines. There has been a great deal of digging in Terline sandpit there since 1870. Recently, however, Arambourg decided to dig deeper than anyone had gone before. He found a rich find of animal fossils and prehistoric tools—and the two jawbones.

No Shopping

The women will do all the shopping when 1,500 Kiwanians and their families come to Victoria for the 37th Pacific Northwest Kiwanis district convention from September 12 to 14.

The convention program sets Monday and Tuesday mornings aside for shopping and sight-seeing by women in the party, but does not give the men any free time.

Centennial of Ship's Arrival Marked

BY JAMES K. NESBITT

NANAIMO—Members of Victoria section of the B.C. Historical Association came here Saturday to mark, with the Nanaimo section, the 100th anniversary of the arrival in Nanaimo passengers were batted down below decks in storm, and how they were becalmed for days on end, and driven back time after time while rounding Cape Horn.

Capt. Daniel Wishart, who made several times as master of the Norman Morrison, brought the Princess Royal to the Island in 1854. This time 100 years ago the vessel was at sea. She left England in June and reached Esquimalt—or Nanaimo—late in November.

BROUGHT COALMERS

The Princess Royal, among her passengers, brought 25 coalers from Staffordshire to work in the coal mines near here. The Hudson's Bay Company in London informed Governor James Douglas: "These men will be accompanied by Mr. George Robinson, also from Staffordshire, who has been engaged as manager of the coal and brick works in Vancouver's Island."

Of oak and teak construction, the Princess Royal was 145 feet long, 29 feet wide and 18 feet deep.

Barrie H. E. Gault, after much research, wrote of the Princess Royal's voyage some years ago in the B.C. Historical Quarterly: "The only chronicle of the voyage itself is the log of the first mate, Charles Galt."

It is a gloomy history of death, misery and dissatisfaction. Toward the end of the first month there was a mild mutiny. The landsmen objected to the condition of the rice served out to them and refused to work, pending the outcome of an inquiry into the matter."

SAFELY ANCHORED

Governor Douglas, reporting the Royal's arrival to London, wrote he had seen the vessel safely at anchor, the weather being dreadful, and they being glad of a shelter in any secure place. She made a remarkably expeditious voyage, having been in a very great haste—at 10 a.m. the woman was on deck washing at 2:30 p.m. she was continued, in consequence of the surgeon having reported to the last three days been driving about the straits, in consequence of thick, stormy weather. The passengers are in tolerable health."

In first mate Galt's sketchy log we read of these events at

Winding Street Valued Asset

NANAIMO—This city's main street may be winding, narrow and crooked, but Nanaimo is proud of it and won't let it go, Mayor George Muir told a meeting Saturday of Nanaimo Historical Association.

Mayor Muir said, "I sometimes wonder whether we pay enough attention to what happened in the past to make our country of today."

He said he believes in preserving old associations and old landmarks.

For instance, he said, that winding, narrow, crooked street is a valued asset to Nanaimo. As long as he's mayor, he said, he'll never agree to having it straightened and widened.

"You can find straight, wide main streets wherever you go," he said.

"While we're getting modern, we don't want to be too modern. We want to keep our crooked streets, and we'll never let our old Bastion go."

A PADRE IN PRINT

BY REV. WILLIAM HILLS

I suppose I ought to be impressed, but I get tired of those distinguished churchmen who, with fine impartiality, cry "a plague on both your houses" so far as democracy and Communism are concerned.

The World Council of Churches currently meeting in Evanston, Ill., is everlastingly right when it denounces Communism as a corruption of history.

There has never been any doubt in my mind that it is impossible to be a Christian and a Communist at the same time.

People who have disagreed with me have pointed to the experience of the early Church. "Turn to the fourth and fifth chapters of the Acts of the Apostles," they say, "and you will see that these Christians practiced Communism."

But this is just another example of the vicious technique of the "half-truth" so skillfully employed in the propaganda of Communists and their fellow travelers.

Why do I say this? Because the very vital and all-important distinction between the voluntary surrender of wealth by the individual, on the one hand, and the compulsory expropriation of other peoples' property, on the other, is wilfully hidden and obscured.

Clergymen who denounce Communism and criticize democracy—without taking a breath—are all unwittingly digging a breach beneath their own ideological foundations.

Of course our democratic society has its faults, but its faults are those of practice rather than of principle.

We are (in the words of Paul) looking "through a glass darkly." Heaven is not yet here on earth. Indeed, until the work of redemption is completed, it can never be achieved in time and space.

While there are sinners in democratic society—and who will claim that he has no sin?—our practice will fall short of our ideals.

"Ah, but a man's reach should exceed his grasp," says Browning.

By all means, let us subject modern-day society to the severest critical scrutiny, but please, dear fathers in God at Evanston, do not nicely balance your condemnation of atheistic Communism with delicate detachment to the one society in the tenets of your religious faith free from the retribution of the secret police.

When it comes to principles and practice, now I come, to think about it, even the Communists are having trouble with their society.

Tovarich is drinking too much vodka. Tovarich is not working hard enough. Tovarich is even going to church.

My friends, I would rather put up with the imperfections of democracy than suffer, for one hour, the perfections of the Communist order.

At least, I've had the opportunity to express my thoughts in print, and you have the privilege to tear them up or wrap them around your garbage—if you wish.

John Regan Funeral Set For Wednesday

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Wednesday in McCall's Funeral Home for John Hugh Regan, 74, of 777 Blanshard Street, a well-known Blisley shot years ago, who died in Victoria Friday.

Mr. Regan, who was born in England, had lived in Victoria for 29 years. Survivors include his wife, Winifred Maud; one son, John Harold, Victoria; a grandson and a granddaughter.

Rev. A. E. Greenhalgh will officiate at the services, which are to be followed by cremation.

Campney Warns Of War

TORONTO (CP)—Defense Minister Campney warned the free world Saturday that over all there hangs "the dark forward today, hot war, perhaps, tomorrow."

"We cannot, we dare not, forget the awful, ever present danger that the men of the Kremlin either deliberately or by miscalculation may one day unleash upon us total war."

MUST BE STRONG
Mr. Campney, in a Warriors Day address to a luncheon meeting at the Canadian National Exhibition, said the Free World must be strong to win the cold war "if we can and thus prevent a hot war from happening at all" and to "develop such strength that we shall win the hot war if it comes."

Mr. Campney spoke from a prepared address.

"Canada has a major part to play in this vital task," he said. "And because we in Canada value the essential freedoms which make up our way of life more than we value life itself, we are joined with those who think as we do, in colossal effort, through the medium of the United Nations and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, to preserve those freedoms, peacefully if we may—by force of arms if we must."

The defense minister recalled Canada's fighting men of history but added that "it is not sufficient that we should look back only on the glory of the past."

"We must be concerned with the realities of the present," he said. Canada has 114,000 trained and well-equipped men in the regular armed forces and behind that a reserve of partially-trained officers and men who form "the backbone and framework upon which we have always quickly mobilized and built our field forces in time of war."

He touched on the recent reorganization of Canada's militia, saying it came about to keep pace with changing conditions and methods of war.

He noted that the reorganization was initiated by the Conference of Defense Associations, which represents each arm and service of the Canadian Army, and that the government's action was endorsed by the conference.

Young Driver Scolded, Parents Fined

Parents of a 17-year-old youth were fined $25, plus $5 costs, in Colwood juvenile court yesterday, after he pleaded guilty to driving without a license.

Juvenile Judge A. I. Thomas presided.

The youth was given a strong reprimand from the bench, and warned about his future conduct.

and was given an extension of time, but failed to return the car.

Moore told police he left the car at Nanaimo and went to Vancouver. He was arrested when he returned to Victoria.

Magistrate A. I. Thomas fined him $75, or 15 days.

Crown Prosecutor Alan Bigelow asked for substantial bail when Arthur Williams, 41 Dun-seen a woman wearing a coat taken in the robbery.

Police report they found much of the property at Williams' home.

Donald Prosser, alias Donald Friedlander, no fixed address, was remanded until Monday by Magistrate Thomas in Esquimalt court on a charge of breaking, entering, and attempted theft.

Police arrested Prosser about 2:40 a.m. after he jumped from Street Saturday morning after course club house. They said two other men escaped.

Prosser broke three windows to enter the premises.

A tuberculosis sufferer, found wandering the streets at 5 a.m., was advised to stay home in future and warned about his conduct by Magistrate Thomas in city court.

Charles Hansen, no fixed address, was picked up on Fort Street Saturday morning after police officers were called to the area to investigate theft of money from milk bottles.

Hansen was taken to the police station on a vagrancy charge.

Crown Prosecutor Bigelow said there was insufficient evidence to lay any charge.

"I wasn't going to rob a house or anything," said Hansen, who added he had not been in trouble for seven years.

Magistrate Thomas told Hansen he will face a severe penalty if he appears in court again.

Johnny Logan made it 3-1, and Spahn followed with a two-run single to nail down the triumph. Carl Follmer, who earlier had slammed his 15th circuit-clout off loser Vic Raschi, provided the clincher for Brooklyn with a two-run single that broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth. Johnny Follmer was credited with his first victory since June 13 with some help from Jim Hughes, who came on in the eighth. Rip Repulski drilled his 17th homer off Hughes in the eighth.

REDEYES WIN

Ted Kluszewski doubled in the tying run in the sixth and continued home with the winning run to give Cincinnati a 2-1 verdict over Pittsburgh Pirates. Corky Valentine, nicknamed for Pittsburgh's lone run in the first, was the winner, with Ralph LaPointe the loser.

Chicago Cubs handed Philadelphia its fifth straight defeat as pitcher Dave Cole knocked out a pair of runs. Cole, relieved by Warren Hacker in the eighth, gained his third triumph.

Willie Miranda, filling in for shortstop Phil Rizzuto, drove in two of the Yankees' runs with sacrifice flies, but it was Yogi Berra's sixth-inning single off Al Aber that snapped a 2-2 deadlock to help Harry Byrd to his ninth win in 16 decisions.

GARCIA WINNER

Mike Garcia gained his 16th victory as he pitched the Indians to their win over Washington Senators. The Yankees kept pace with a 4-2 decision over Detroit.

SPAHN'S 16TH

Southpaw Warren Spahn limited the Giants to seven hits in recording his 16th victory for the Braves. The Giants tied the count at 1-1 in the fifth on Hank Thompson's 21st home run but the Braves routed them 5-2 with their eighth-inning surge.

North Shores Edged, 3-2, By Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP)—Winnipeg Army, Navy and Air Force Scottish Saturday edged Vancouver's North Shore United 3-2 in Winnipeg in the first of a three-game Dominion soccer championship series for which neither side was at its best.

Cheered on by a near-capacity crowd of 2,000, Winnipeg went to the front shortly after play opened when centre Jimmy Murphy's cross to beat Joe Travis in the Vancouver goal. Joe Travis pulled Vancouver even with a goal 15 minutes later and another by Lex Henderson from Stan Bob put Vancouver on top.

Centre half George James came through for Winnipeg for another marker and scored again early in the second half for the margin of victory, collecting credit for two goals.

The second game of the series is set for Monday here.

Americans Take Laurels In Events at Speedway

American machines cleaned up in a big car meet at Western Speedway, Millstream Road, last night as drivers from south of the border won four of the six events.

Cliff Spaulding of Portland, driving an Offenhauser, turned in the top performance of the evening as he won both the main event and trophy dash and also took first place in the second heat. Del Fanning of Seattle was runner-up to Spaulding in the trophy dash.

Football Group Meets Tuesday

An important meeting of the Victoria and District Football Association will be held at the British Public Schools Club Tuesday night at 7.30.

Delegates of all clubs entering the two leagues are urged to attend as team entries will close Tuesday night. Three clubs—Butler Bros., Combines and Duncan Native Sons—are seeking to gain admission to the second division.

O'Dell Wins Main Event, Lowers Track Record

Digger O'Dell of Ladysmith further established his position as leading driver at Shearling's Speedway, Cobble Hill, last night by driving his stock car to victory in the main event and also lowering his track record in the trophy dash.

O'Dell dominated an action-packed stock car program for the second straight week as he lowered his track record of 17.24 by completing the one lap on the paved oval in 17.10 seconds.

He was given a strong tussle by Jack Rumley in the main

Oak Bay, Navy Clash In Football Exhibition

Oak Bay and Navy will give Victoria fans their first glimpse of Canadian football this season when they clash at Colville Road this afternoon in an exhibition game starting at 2.

A spirited battle is expected as players, with weeks of training behind them, get their first taste of actual grid warfare and bid for first-string berths for the coming Victoria Canadian Football League season.

NAVY CHANGES

Navy, which rolled to a first-place finish in league play last winter and dropped the playoff title to Royal Roads, will be a greatly changed aggregation this season. Only nine of the 40 candidates who have been working out for the bluejackets have performed previously in the city league.

Listed among the holdovers are Dave Martin, Cliff Sakkefild, Bill Buchan, Jack Bowers, Bob

Fernwood Now Near Boxla Title

Fernwood moved to within one game of the city bantam lacrosse championship at Stevenson Park yesterday by trimming Saanich, 10-6, in the fourth game of a best-of-seven final.

GRABS OWN RICK

Pollard and Reid turned in outstanding games for the losers, both carrying for long gains at crucial points in the game. But it was kicker Don Lord who made Lions' most spectacular play. Punting from deep in his own end, Lord raved up the field to fall on the bouncing ball while stunned Bomber backs stood looking at it.

Lions made a great goal line stand in the third quarter. With Winnipeg in possession on the four-yard line, the big B.C. line, led by Arnie Weinmeister and Chuck Quilter, stopped first Jesse Thomas, then Jacobs, on plunges, then rushed Jacobs into an incomplete pass on third down.

But lack of experienced bench strength took its toll and they were unable to keep Winnipeg far enough from their goal line in the final quarter.

Port Alberni's All-Stars Drop Two to City Team

Port Alberni Four-X All-Stars, who will represent Vancouver Island in juvenile "B" provincial baseball playdowns, lost their fourth consecutive game to Victoria Van and Storage as the city bantam-league champions swept an exhibition double-header at Beacon Hill Park Saturday afternoon.

The Victoria club, which is not registered for B.C. playoffs, scored a 6-2 triumph in the opening contest and edged the visitors, 3-4, in the afterpiece.

Argos, Alouettes Open with Wins

Montreal Alouettes, chosen as the team to beat, and the rebuilt Toronto Argonauts both chalked up impressive victories yesterday as the 1954 Big Four Football Conference season opened before a combined crowd of 34,000 and millions of United States television viewers.

The power-packed Alouettes made the experts look good as they upended the Grey Cup champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats, 24-6, before 17,000 spectators at Hamilton. Another 17,000 fans watched at Toronto as the Argonauts downed Ottawa Rough Riders, 13-6, on the strength of a 39-yard dash by Teddy Toogood and a long pass.

ALS COAST HOME

Montreal, unbeaten in three pre-season exhibition games, ran up an 18-0 lead at half-time and coasted from there. Imports Sam Etcheberry, Alex Webster, Larry Grigg and Canadian-American Virgil Wagner scored touchdowns for the Als and Ray Poole, former New York giant, added four converts.

Hamilton's lone major was scored by Ray Ramsay, former

Revived Stampede Riders Crush Roughriders

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampede showed a sharp reversal of form and steamed to a 34-0 victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders Saturday night in Calgary before a crowd of 14,000.

The Stampede Riders, who have been beaten in their first two romping for majors, LeBaron Western Interprovincial Conference outtings, struck back with a vengeance against the hapless Roughriders—the same team that downed them 11-7 last Monday night.

Eddie LeBaron performed brilliantly at the Calgary Colts Saturday night, moving the Stampede into a 6-0 lead at the end of the first quarter and holding a 19-0 bulge at half-time. The Cowboys piled up a 28-0 margin by three goals.

Farmers in Finals Of Island Baseball

Farmer Construction, hiding to bring a provincial championship to Victoria, marched into the final round of the Vancouver Island senior amateur baseball playoffs yesterday by sweeping a doubleheader from Powell River Rodmays at Royal Athletic Park.

Farmers clinched a 3-1 victory in the best-of-five series as they clubbed their way to a 10-2 mates off two Rodmay pitchers in the fast-moving contest, which was completed in one hour and 46 minutes.

Southpaw Bill Garner toiled the distance for Victoria in the nightcap, subduing the visitors on six hits while his mates backed him with a 12-ho attack.

Ron Karadimas set the day's batting pace for the winners, connecting for two hits in four appearances in the opener and blasting three safeties in five nightcap appearances.

Although nothing will be at stake but prestige, the two clubs will tangle in a double-header at Athletic Park this afternoon. Bill Prior, former Victoria Tyee right-hander, is manager Ed Ash's pitching choice.

Two Youths Die, Pair Injured As Cars Collide

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two youths died and two others were injured in a two-car collision here early yesterday.

Dead were 20-year-old Donald Marshall and 21-year-old Donald H. Robson. They were pronounced dead on arrival at hospital after their car collided with another.

A companion 22-year-old Stanley Mitchell suffered a fractured knee.

Driver of the second car was 21-year-old Leslie T. Stapleton who suffered head lacerations.

VANCOUVER (CP)—It finally happened. Someone after many years of joking about the subject—has stolen a kitchen sink.

The situation was just too much for the usually curbed police radio dispatcher. He made two false starts, faltered with laughter, and finally managed to blurt out: "They just stole the kitchen sink."

The whole thing finally turned out to be a mistake of sorts. The sink wasn't actually stolen, just taken by an other man who owned it on a 50-50 basis.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A poor lot of $40,000 has been provided for University of British Columbia students in the will of the late Mrs. H. W. Wainwright.

The fund was disclosed when the will disposing of a $300,000 estate was filed for probate in Supreme Court.

Dr. Wainwright died last May at the age of 78.

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Ng-Gee was remanded another eight days here Friday on a charge of murdering 74-year-old Hong Hai August 17. A witness was found lying near the body.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A fugitive from Esquimalt Mental Hospital was arrested near Coquitlam Friday after police thought they were on the trail of escaped convict Clifford Dawley.

The man was sighted by residents of the area and flushed out of the bush by the RCMP dog Bobby after a 2 1/2-hour hunt.

The man's appearance was similar to Dawley's, but only at a distance.

ARUNDEL, Que. (CP)—Gen. Kazimir Sosnkowski, former commander-in-chief of the Polish army, said yesterday he was "considering" an invitation to become president of the troubled Polish government-in-exile in Britain.

Sosnkowski, who has been a Laurentian farming community 80 miles from Montreal since 1945, said he had been approached by a triumvirate now in power.

There are many things to consider, however, and I have yet to make up my mind," he declared.

The term of office of former president August Zaleski ended June 9.

Peace, Prosperity Aim Of U.S. Republicans

CINCINNATI (AP)—Republicans pledged out a peace and prosperity program as they gathered here Saturday for a three-day conference to blueprint plans for the campaign to retake control of Congress.

With national committee members scheduled to begin in formal conferences today, an advance guard of Young Republicans prepared to tell their elected the strongest appeal of the GOP for new voters lies in maintaining a high level of employment and keeping the guns of war silent.

Reds Waging Silent Conquest

SAIGON (CP)—The silent Communist conquest of the south of Vietnam is continuing. Under the Geneva agreement, elections will be held in the north and south. The Communist government in the north is waging a silent conquest in the south.

Find Booms Stocks

BY CANADIAN PRESS

A zinc discovery in northern Ontario this week triggered the findings.

The find on holdings of Willamette in the Chicago stock market, north of Lake Superior, showed Toronto Stock Exchange volume to the highest level since February.

The news hit Toronto and Montreal early in the week and sent Willamette stock rocketing. The advance spread to other mining prospects.

Trading picked up a week progressed and Friday more than 4,000,000 shares were exchanged with a surge of lower priced base metals getting heavy play.

Some brokers explained it this way: For months the lower-priced mining issues had been fairly quiet. Investors were considering them but needed a shove to invest in quantity.

With Willamette booming, traders hopped on the bandwagon. Transactions with properties in scattered sections of the country, as well as Manitowadge stocks came in for heavy demand.

Willamette gained about 50 per cent of its value in the week. In contrast, the overall market trend at New York, Toronto and Montreal this week was down.

Battle Shaping For Control Of Giant Firm

NEW YORK (AP)—A new fight involving control of one of the giant corporations, this time Montgomery Ward and Co., highlighted developments in U.S. business and finance during the week.

The challenge of Louis E. Wolfson, 12, financier and former junk dealer, to the 23-year-old rule of Sewell Avery, 80, board chairman of Ward, promises one of the most colorful battles the business world has seen in years.

Otherwise, the U.S. economy moved through the final week of the month with a fairly steady pace but with little to cheer about although there were some bright spots.

Electric power output reached an all-time high, but consumer gasoline inventories were cut a little more, refinery output stepped up slightly and steel production picked up a little. But freight and foreign automobile production moved construction and bank clearings sagged. The stock market steadied at the end of the week after backing down four days in a row from its 25-year high reached at the end of last week.

The Wolfson-Sewell battle for control of Montgomery Ward had been rumored for several days when it came to a climax Thursday in a press conference at which Wolfson said he was not to take over the $1,000,000,000-a-year Chicago mail order store.

He said point of attack was a new, possibly, stock option in the company's new plan, a conservative policy. Wolfson said he was not to take over the $1,000,000,000-a-year Chicago mail order store.

Mad Days of Canadian Oil Boom Done, Sound Future Ahead, U.S. Firm Sure

BY HARRY YOUNG

Colonist Business Editor

At least one firm of U.S. investment specialists thinks that the mad boom days are over for Canadian oil and that the industry is now in sound shape and ready to face the future with firm confidence.

Calvin Bullock of New York says that when the western oil market opened in 1947, it reached its peak two years ago. The future was over, he counted. Today the investor is able to purchase oil shares which frequently in their only the value of oil on the market.

The Alberta governments land policy in regard to Crown acreage also excites the admiration of the New York firm which claims that it gives the small oil company in Canada a uniquely favorable position.

Small companies are due to obtain land for exploration and to begin semi-improved acreage so that in comparison to the conditions ruling in the U.S. and states, the small company can make more for its land dollar.

In 1947 Canada was producing only 8 per cent of its oil requirements. Today it produces 43 per cent but despite that big increase Canada is still importing more foreign oil than in 1947. This is due to a 15 per cent annual increase in consumption.

However, with the discovery at Pembina and Suihrten Lake in 1953, the Canadian oil industry in 1955 to produce about 500,000 barrels a day, which would make it theoretically self-sufficient in oil.

But in comparison to the conditions ruling in the U.S. and states, the small company can make more for its land dollar.

This, however, would not be a good thing for the silver lead ore market, because the refineries of Quebec and Nova Scotia are expected to start producing an imported crude and export quantities from about 1,000 barrels a day.

Market reports are that Hiram Walker, Goodenham and Wicks will produce a stock split shortly. Stock has moved from 50 to 100 in the last few days, and is now at 100.

Only the western part of the oil market is expected to be competitive. The Pacific Northwest is a lagged outlier.

Calvin Bullock feels that the realization of these markets is the most serious problem currently facing the Canadian oil industry.

Big profits in production of high class industrial stocks has brought a new wave of money into the speculative stock market.

On Friday the Toronto Stock Exchange topped the 4,000,000 trading mark for the first time this year, and continuing to show the peak of the 1952 boom.

The market at the moment seems in the shape to gobble up favorable mining or oil prospects regardless of economics.

William Dunbar, a native of East Lothian, was, as is generally understood, a cadet of a noble family. Intended for the Church, he graduated at St. Andrews University in 1479, being probably then in his twentieth year. He entered the Franciscan Order of Monks, as a novice, and we learn from "The Visitation of St. Francis," that he travelled as an itinerant friar through Scotland, even crossing to France.

 ILLINOIS, long had hopes of becoming a protection and a shelter for the poor and the distressed, but the late war has disappointed her. Very few of her sons are now at home, and the face of her people is everywhere a picture of grief. The late war has been a great calamity to the State, and the late war has been a great calamity to the State, and the late war has been a great calamity to the State.

A leading specialist in the field of "Selling Goods to the Thriftful and the Rose" is the author of the book "The Thriftful and the Rose" which is a collection of stories and poems. The book is published by the Thriftful and the Rose Company, 1234 Main Street, New York, N. Y. 10001. The book is available in paperback for $2.95 and in hardcover for $4.95. The book is a must-read for anyone interested in the history of the Thriftful and the Rose Company.

The Lament of the Makars is a collection of elegiac poems by Alexander Mackenzie, written from his exile while he was imprisoned on a small island off the coast of Alaska. The poet had previously fled to Barbary, owing time (of some of those days we know no more than that our task is here) with the work of others in a particular way.

When the time comes to make a change, it's important to know what to expect. "I've found that the most common mistake people make is to think that they can just throw out their old furniture and replace it with something new," says the author. "But in reality, the process is much more complicated. It involves not only the physical act of moving, but also the emotional and psychological aspects of leaving a place that has been your home for so long. It's a process that takes time and patience, and it's one that you need to be prepared for."

West Will Make Room for Iran's Oil

SETTLEMENT of the British-Iranian oil dispute brings security to the troubled Middle East even if it will present the West with a problem in disposing of another 650,000 barrels of oil daily in an already glutted world petroleum market.

That's a cheap diplomatic price to pay for keeping the shaky government of the Shah out of Communist clutches.

Iran had teetered on the verge of bankruptcy ever since ex-Premier Mossadegh pulled the Persian oil rug out from under his nation's feet by confiscating the properties of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co.

From 1950 to 1952, he was a member of the editorial board of the Journal of the American Statistical Association, and, in 1952, he was elected to the American Statistical Association. After working as a consulting statistician for a number of newspapers, the Minneapolis Tribune, he became a staff statistician for the Minneapolis Tribune and later the Minneapolis Star in 1926.

He wanted to spend all his time in the studio, which was a total denial of the fact that Art was still in the first half of the 20th century. Not only that, but he was a Jew, which meant that his mother was a Jewish mother. Art was a Jew, which meant that his mother was a Jewish mother. Art was a Jew, which meant that his mother was a Jewish mother.

The history of this Empire line suit is emphasized by its distinctive silhouette and well-stated fabric. Strongly tailored, this model suit features the Empire waist, an Empire line at the bust. The pointed lapels of which the collar is made on the outside, has fine creases or sleeves that may be pushed up to the arm. A single button, said to be the most perfect of all, with the waist.

There's no importance in the slim dress for fall 1961 as colors point up a new softer tone. Here is a slim dress using beige jersey and outlining the collar and hip pockets with matching beige satin. For extra chic, a beige satin ascot is added. There's no importance in the dress for the ascot because it can be worn or not worn.

Call of the Outdoors

LIFE in the great outdoors may be wishful thinking to thousands of folks "in city pent" but over 100 Victorians have made it an exciting reality.

Office workers, doctors, lawyers, housewives, clerks and craftsmen—these carefree citizens are members of the Outdoor Club of Victoria.

Most weekends throughout the year, in groups of 15 to 50, they can be seen hiking through field and forest, swimming the lakes and streams, or climbing the mountains, of Nature's inviting domain, anywhere from close by Sooke, up-island to the Olympics.

How do they manage this enviable escape from work-a-day drudgery? Simple!—they give free rein to youthful spirit and get out and do, while others dream.

Operating at lowest possible cost, the Outdoor Club is open to all who are young at heart; married couples or singletons; high school grades or lively oldsters; for informal excursions—day or weekend—with pack lunch and blanket or sleeping bag, rain or shine, summer or winter.

This year's president of the Outdoor Club, Ted Fairhurst, at one of the many peaks climbed on trips further afield, welcomes all persons of a responsible age to join this informal group of energetic Vancouver Islanders.

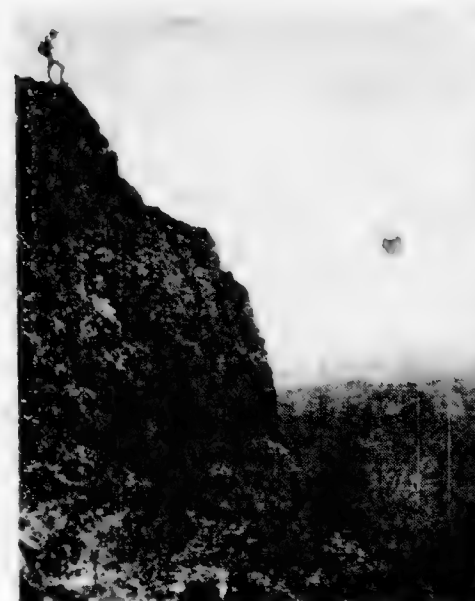

A wayside picnic with members of the club. A weekend will see a return camping and climbing trip to Arbutus Pass in the heart of the Olympics, always followed by a sojourn in the hot spring steams and the campfire.

Looking southwestward from an advantage point in the Alberni district, two of the members search out new climbs for the future club activities.

Looking out from the hills above Maple Bay, over the Gulf Islands, Mt. Maxwell on Salt Spring Island in the background.

The long, tough climb to the summit of Mt. Gipsy is well rewarded by the awe-inspiring view of the Freshwater's River Valley and lakes nearly 5000 feet below.

Whales Perform For Residents Of Ten Mile Point

Residents of the Ten-Mile Point area were intrigued yesterday by the voyaging of three whales, close inshore, blowing and sounding. Between 3.30 and 4 p.m. the big creatures cavorted off the point, after making a swift turn into Cadboro Bay.

Construction of the new Queen Alexandra Solarium for crippled children in still in the planning stage and a contract will not be let until a new set of plans and specifications has been drawn up.

"Some little time must elapse before we shall be in a position to go ahead with this very important undertaking," said David Angus, chairman of the planning committee, yesterday.

The 30-acre site of the new solarium is on Arbutus Road at Gordon Head.

People on Urban Farming Wood's paper route may have to wait a little while for their Colonist today, because the carrier's blazer took a hole in the paper when he was shot at 5 p.m. yesterday.

Archbishop's Audience Limited

The Canadian Club of Victoria has urged its members to purchase tickets as soon as possible for the luncheon meeting which will hear the Archbishop of Canterbury, September 9.

The will address a group meeting of the Men and Women's Christian Clubs in the Memorial Hall of St. James Anglican Church, Balmora Road. The audience will be limited to 300.

The club also announced three future speakers, including a member of the British cabinet.

Vicount Swinton, minister of commerce and affairs, will be here October 8.

Mrs. Pierre Clouston, an author on French Canada, will speak November 19, and Brig. Gen. Desmond Miles, a correspondent of The London Times, will speak to the club January 20.

The U.S. submarine Rasher will take part in operations in B.C. waters with units of the Royal Canadian Navy Pacific Command training fleet this week.

Ex-Victorian Running Trade Fair

A former Victoria man who was recently appointed administrator of the Canadian International Trade Fair in Toronto will return to this city, September 1 to 7, on a business trip.

R. F. Ogilvie left Toronto yesterday with Mr. McCormack, Smyth assistant administrator in charge of exhibition space at the fair, to visit various regional chapters, Edmonton and Vancouver as well as Victoria.

They will meet special trade fair representatives and talk with key industrial and association executives, as well as governmental trade and industry officials, to develop new trade groups for the fair.

Mr. Ogilvie who helped organize the first fair in 1948, is

Veteran Totem Pole Carver At Work in Department Store

Ancient art is combined with modern merchandising methods on the main floor of the Hudson's Bay Company store these days as one of the B.C.'s oldest totem pole carvers goes about his work.

Jimmy John, 63-year-old Nootka Indian who has been carving totem poles for 30 years, has been showing HBC customers how it's done, and will be doing so again tomorrow.

Mr. John, a Nanaimo resident for more than 20 years, was brought to Victoria by the store, which will buy his carved work for resale to the public.

The elderly Indian gave away a few secrets of his trade yesterday, explaining that he uses a $1.50 pocket knife, but only the small blade because the big one is too broad—and he has to buy a new knife each month.

His totem poles are carved from yellow cedar which he obtains from an Indian beachcomber near Nanaimo.

Mr. John used to carve from white pine,

Touring Sabre Jet Will Attempt Supersonic Bang Over Vancouver

A big bang is expected in Vancouver today as one of the RCAF F86D Sabre jets, which will visit Victoria later in the week, will try to crash the sound barrier.

The exact time and place of the attempt were not known late last night, but it was hoped to make the run over the RCAF Sea Island base, probably during the afternoon.

The 15 jets are currently on a tour of Western Canadian cities.

Six City Pilots Want To Join 'Flying Tigers'

At least six Victoria ex-fighter pilots are "ready, willing and eager" to join a volunteer anti-Communist air group to fight in the Far East.

The six met Friday and agreed to inform the Colonist they were prepared to accept the invitation of B.C. born pilot Albert Mah to join a new "Flying Tigers" force like that led by U.S. Gen. Claire Chennault to help the hard-pressed Chinese during the Second World War.

There are plenty of veteran pilots who are now waiting to meet Mah and hear his "proposition."

Even though they expect to pay $5000 annual insurance for reasonable protection the fliers feel the remuneration is sufficient inducement to take them to the Far East trouble spots, if it were during the Second World War.

Attlee May Be Asked To Come to Victoria

Clement Attlee, leader of the quest will be sent to him by the executive of the local CCF group, Mr. Loudon said.

The Victoria Oak Bay CCF Association will discuss an invitation to Mr. Attlee during a meeting on or before September 2, Bruce Loudon, association president said yesterday.

He said inquiries are being made regarding Mr. Attlee's itinerary should the British statesman accept an invitation to Seattle, which was made by a group of Americans who wanted to "clear the air" with respect to the current trip of Mr. Attlee and other Labor party officials to Communist China.

If Mr. Attlee accepts the Seattle invitation, a formal request will be made to him to visit Victoria after a proposed trip to Seattle.

Shopping with Sally Something New For Neckline

Several men around the office have been wearing those new cord ties with their sport shirts claiming that they give the shirt a new look.

These ties are made of a soft, lightweight cord with fancy ends, held in place by a slider like the cord on a middy. I wanted to get some for myself to wear with tailored blouses and collared dresses, and I found that I didn't have to invade the men's clothing stores to get them.

A women's wear store just got a shipment of the ties in, and they have two types, one for dress-up and one for everyday.

Dressy or Tailored

The dressy ones are black velvet cords with rhinestone tips and a rhinestone slider in position. Now I have a picture of one of these on a wool jersey or crepe dress or a pretty blouse, and since the price is just 98 cents, it won't make a hole in your clothing budget.

The others are more expensive, $1.95. They are of black, brown, or dark green cord with wooden ends, and the sliders are also of wood, carved into a cattlehead or mask design or inset with a tiny picture. These are meant for wear with a sweater or a tweed or wool dress.

Name a Color—It's There

I came across one of the best handkerchief buys ever. What's news about these hankies isn't that they're finest Irish linen or that they have a narrow white border or that they cost $1 for three.

It's the exciting range of colors they come in. You'll find one in just about every shade of every color you can name, from all the tones of brown and grey to the most flaming pinks, yellows, and greens.

For instance, there's wisteria pink, California lime yellow, iris, pasty beige, there's a hint of pink in it, Indian purple, blue haze, cloud grey, Bali turquoise, apricot brandy, and ever so many others.

With the all-one color look being pushed for this fall, you'll be right in style if you wear one shade, right down to your hankie.

Beauty and You

By MARION MATTHEWS

Sleep is seldom considered efficient for those who suffer from a beauty program and from arthritis or who are bed-ridden. A most important factor is sleep.

It is in sleep that the body repairs itself. It is in sleep that the mind rests. It is in sleep that the body's natural healing process is at work. It is in sleep that the body's natural healing process is at work.

Perhaps you've heard the one that as you grow older you require less sleep. This may be true, but it is not true in terms of your appearance. Actually, as you add years you should add a little more to your sleep schedule.

Eight hours every night and three nights a week with 10 hours helps lessen the strain of time and weariness.

Dampers yourself if sleep is difficult by investing in a really fine mattress. Try some of the colored bed linens in a time that lifts your spirits. Color is a wonderful psychological lift.

Develop sensible habits that promote rest at the end of your day. For example, don't have a stimulating drink or eat heavy food before turning in for the night. You won't sleep because the system is stimulated and busy working to digest food.

A drink of milk with the chill removed is excellent. Read a little or listen to something soothing. Above all, forget the day's troubles and don't get into a family argument. If you do, settle it before you turn in. Pleasant thoughts mean you'll get off to sleep faster.

Klondike Kate Danced In 500 Yards of Silk

VANCOUVER CP. There were 500 yards of silk in the dress Klondike Kate wore in her dance in Dawson, Y.T., 50 years ago.

Here for the 21st time, Klondike Kate danced in the dress.

Her face is lined, her hair is white, and she wears a blue hat, but her dancing, which is personally supervised by her niece, is as vigorous as ever.

There were 500 yards of silk in the dress, said Kate. Klondike Kate, now Mrs. William Van Buren of Redmond, Ore., danced the folk-dance and the spotlight played on it. They said I could make silk talk.

Daughter of Judge Frank A. Burtis of Spokane, Wash., Kate went north because "my feet always wanted to move."

She was in Dawson City when the Klondike gold rush was in its heyday. There was no money, but the Klondike gold rush was in its heyday.

"I danced with my feet emphasized with a grin. Not any bits of lace. A decent lot of girls worked their legs in the dance halls. With a decent lot of respect for their girls."

She said legends about the Klondike gold rush were not true. The Klondike gold rush was not a gold rush.

Someone called me Aunt Klondike, but people like to think I am around with diamonds. I am around with diamonds. I am around with diamonds.

I was just an ordinary look. I was just an ordinary look. I was just an ordinary look.

The Klondike gold rush was not a gold rush. The Klondike gold rush was not a gold rush.

BY ROY PARKETT

Last week I had a visit from Henry Portan, KTNV-TV engineer. Together we set out puzzles of KTNV-TV reception, since the move to the new location.

Armed with a sheaf of letters from unhappy viewers, we looked at reception in several parts of the city where channel 11 was reported "out."

Strangely enough, we found only one house where the CBS station did not have a usable signal. The poor picture here was the result of a low gain, inadequate antenna, according to Mr. Portan.

Quite a few of the homes visited boasted quite a good KTNV-TV signal.

The engineer thought Victoria viewers were pretty hard on him. "I don't get reception in Seattle as good as some of these people enjoy," he said.

"Lots of people in Seattle and Tacoma don't get pictures nearly as good as those we saw today."

A freak of reception directed an unusually strong KTNV-TV signal into some parts of Victoria before the move, according to Mr. Portan. People in these areas could pick up the station on any kind of an aerial.

Although the station is now serving a much greater area here, the "hot spots" are gone apparently.

Competent antenna crews could restore channel 11 reception in some areas. If the tuner is prepared to pay for the work involved, the engineer said.

Tuning in: Baseball fans will see the final of the Little League World Series on KTNV-TV.

Monday morning at 8 o'clock.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 29, 1954
Today's quotation: "My heart welcomes these guests: love, kindness, understanding, and their many friends. For those their door is ever open, and with their coming, unwanted visitors slip quietly away."
—Kather Freeman

Sunday for everyone. The day favors relaxation as well as plans, religious or social matters. Get about and see people, especially friends; enjoy yourself.

Look for your birthdate and birthplace below:
March 21 to April 19 (Aries) Go in for activities that will benefit your health. Seek the society of those who are of help to you.

April 20 to May 20 (Taurus) Get an added measure of joy and relaxation in the company of those dear to you.

May 21 to June 20 (Gemini) Lay out your domestic, family program or enjoy a guest or two. Seek a pleasurable day.

June 21 to July 22 (Cancer) Make this a busy time. Get your quota of fun; take a jaunt or welcome friends.

July 23 to August 22 (Leo) Attend to possessions, financial interests. Add to the worth of belongings.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) Push your good luck in connection with personal considerations; get around a bit.

September 23 to October 22 (Libra) Strengthen accord and capture the esteem of others. Indulge in a bit of privacy.

October 23 to November 21 (Scorpio) Play up the festive note today; heed the call of friendship, gaiety, sociability.

November 22 to December 21 (Sagittarius) Assume your rightful position in commercial, household and social activities. Gain prestige.

December 22 to January 19 (Capricorn) Make plans, decisions, appointments. Go after preference; put drive and vigor into your projects.

January 20 to February 18 (Aquarius) Get in step with the happier prospects which now unfold. Make a success of a festive event.

February 19 to March 20 (Pisces) Cast off fear and strain; relax, attain a sense of well-being. Work in unison.

Planning ahead Good for entertainment, sociability, etc.: August 29, 30, September 1, 3, 4, 5, 7.

MONDAY, AUGUST 30, 1954
Today's quotation: "By the time a wise man is old enough to afford to marry, a fool will have children old enough to support him."
—James Cornwall in Stanton, Nebr. Register.

Monday for everyone! Protect your interests in money matters and belongings. Take care of necessary purchases only. Do not undertake heavy responsibilities or make changes of importance. Curtail spending; shun haste, quarrelsomeness.

Look for your birthdate and birthplace below:
March 21 to April 19 (Aries) Be cooperative and try to maintain the good-will of others. Protect partnership interests.

April 20 to May 20 (Taurus) Get a prompt start with activities that need your attention. Circumvent antagonisms, risks.

May 21 to June 20 (Gemini) Relaxation, poise and a sense of humor are helpful. Do not force issues. Shun upsets.

June 21 to July 22 (Cancer) Attend to matters involving your home and base of operations. Defer unnecessary trips, contacts.

July 23 to August 22 (Leo) Occupy yourself with attention to minor tasks and dealings. Offset possible rifts.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) Carry through ordinary duties. Make routine purchases. Exert tact in financial dealings and rare possessions.

September 23 to October 22 (Libra) Go ahead with your own undertakings today. Keep clear of complications. Don't loan borrow.

October 23 to November 21 (Scorpio) Finish rather than start things. Catch up on rest. Elude tension nerves.

November 22 to December 21 (Sagittarius) Gain through friendly contacts, rumors if possible. Remain neutral in business matters. Shun gossip.

December 22 to January 19 (Capricorn) Set yourself ahead in your projects or occupational chores by being early. Keep calm; use tact with elders.

January 20 to February 18 (Aquarius) Exercise care where necessary to plan and decide wisely. Be conservative in all that you undertake.

Planning ahead Good for entertainment, sociability, etc.: August 30, September 1, 3, 4, 5, 7, afternoon and evening of 9, 11, 12.

BRIDGE QUIZ

When your partner opens the bidding and the next player overcalls, you may correctly pass with many different types of hands, ranging from zero to as much as a couple of tricks. It is with hands of fair strength that some players come in with free bids that lead to disaster. If partner rebids, you have a further chance to clarify the picture of your hand.

This much should be borne in mind, however: If he fails to re-open the bidding with a takeout double, or with some other strong call, it means that he is unable to do so. A simple rebid of his own suit may represent a pretty fair hand, but he cannot have a powerhouse; he is probably counting on your hand for a little something because the opponents haven't bid strongly.

Both sides vulnerable, the bidding goes: What should North bid in the following hands?

Answers to Bridge Quiz

(a) Three Spades. You were close to a five bid. Partner's voluntary rebid of spades to re-open, while competitive and perhaps aimed at nothing more than a part score, does show a strong suit for which question-small will be ample support. It would be discouraging as well as misleading to bid three clubs.

(b) Pass. Your trick-plus-a-couple-of-jacks is no more than your partner can expect from the opponents' weak bidding.

(c) Three clubs. Even though partner's suit probably needs no rescue, your suit is strong enough to stand on its own, and may possibly find gold in partner's hand.

(d) Two no-trump. Partner can hardly expect any more, or you would have come into the bidding immediately. With distributed strength and an honor in hearts, or with a solid six-card spade suit and a side ace partner may be able to bid three no-trump.

(e) Pass. You don't need to rescue, and your own suit is likely to be dangerously unsafe.

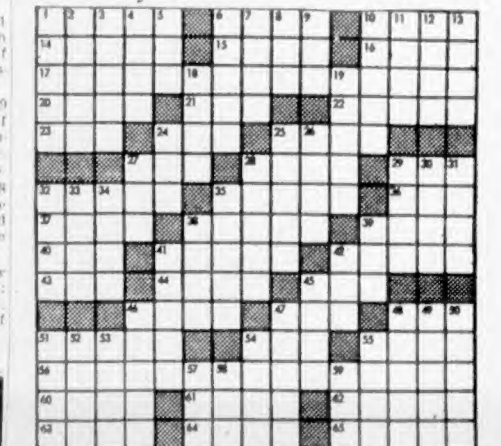

(f) Pass. This is the kind of hand on which some players automatically bid two no-trump because they have a double stopper, they hope in the opponents' suit. But where are the tricks to make game coming from?

Home, Safety Hard To Realize

Richard Nowalinski finds it difficult to believe he has a Canadian visa. For more than five years after he escaped from his Red-dominated Polish homeland, the diesel engineer spent his time trying to find sanctuary. He was frequently jailed for illegal entry. Nowalinski has now found a home in Victoria. With him is Mrs. William Rogers, 42 South Turner, a volunteer immigration worker, who helped him in his fight to live in Canada.

Cagey B.C. Prospector Risks Curse of Slumach

VANCOUVER (UPI)—A cunning prospector, riding the legendary curse of Old Slumach, the killer Indian, is picking his way over the craggy mountains northeast of here with clues he believes will lead to the fabulous Lost Creek gold mine.

C. C. Agat, operations manager of Okanagan Helicopters, knows the prospector's identity but is sworn to secrecy. The gold-seeker chartered the helicopter company to fly him into the area and will rendezvous with the pilot again at an undisclosed time and place.

After living high on his hidden cache of wealth, renewed on frequent trips into the wilderness, the Indian was sentenced to death for murder in New Westminster in November, 1890 and hanged there two months later.

Wife Run Over To Save Child

CHEBOYGAN, Mich. (AP)—Arthur Rapson drove his two-ton truck ten feet up his driveway.

Mrs. Rapson's shoulder, enough to free the baby.

On the three-mile drive to the hospital, Mrs. Rapson put her mouth to the baby's mouth and forced her breath into him. At the hospital William was revived with oxygen.

Typhoon Nears China

TAIPEH, Formosa (UPI)—The worst typhoon in five years swerved south of Formosa today carrying torrents of rain whipped by 150-mile-an-hour winds toward the already flood-ravaged China mainland.

The weather bureau said typhoon Ida passed through the Bashi Channel and was expected to hit in the vicinity of Swatow.

New York City police were quickly alerted, especially commands on the West Side, along the waterfront. Burke reputedly has returned to his old haunts there in the past with reckless abandon.

Burke was awaiting trial for possession of a machine gun, by West Boston Bridge to Cambridge.

Royal Family May Be Planning To Shift Investments to Canada

Firm Decision Awaits Queen Mother's Visit

BY TOM GREEN
Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—The British royal family is planning to transfer a large part of its North American investments from the United States to Canada in the near future, according to an unconfirmed report in Ottawa.

A similar report, recently carried in a New York newspaper, brought no denial from London.

The report also suggests that the Queen Mother, when she visits Washington and Ottawa this fall, will look into the matter before a definite decision is made. The Queen Mother is said to be the custodian of the royal family's personal investments.

A spokesman for the Canadian government said yesterday he is not aware of any such move. Neither is the United Kingdom high commissioner's office. An official of the U.K. information office here said it was the first he had heard that the royal family had personal investments in the U.S.A.

The investments have been estimated to be valued at from several million to a few hundred million dollars. They consist of real estate, including a large building in the heart of New York; an interest in railways, telephone and other utilities.

Some of the investments are reported to have remained in the name of the royal family since before the War of 1812. One report making the rounds is that the London brokers in charge of investments for the royal family, understood to be Barclay's Bank, Ltd., have advised the transfer.

Some of the investments are reported to be producing a handsome return annually.

Fighting Expected To Rise

TAIPEH, Formosa (UPI)—Military observers predicted yesterday that Nationalist and Communist Chinese forces along the southeast China coast would increase the tempo of their fighting during the winter.

There was also a rising fear that Red China might throw her air power against Formosa or its outpost islands before enough jet reinforcements arrive for the Nationalist air force. Two newspapers reported without confirmation that U.S. air force Sabres would be based on Formosa.

Military observers here said the Communists could be expected to step up their raids against Quemoy Island and other Nationalist-held islands just off the coast and that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek would order his forces to lash back with harassing assaults against the mainland.

NOT SERIOUS
An American officer who was on Quemoy when it was raided by Communist commandos last Monday said the raid was not regarded as serious.

He expressed doubt the Communists were ready to launch large-scale attacks at present, but he thought they might throw their potent airpower against the island.

He said there was also no sign the Communists were putting together the forces on the mainland needed for an amphibious assault—landing craft, food and ammunition—and that there had been no sign of heavy troop movements.

Called bluff
In Miami Beach, Fla., yesterday, U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., branded Communist China's threat to invade Formosa a "mere bluff."

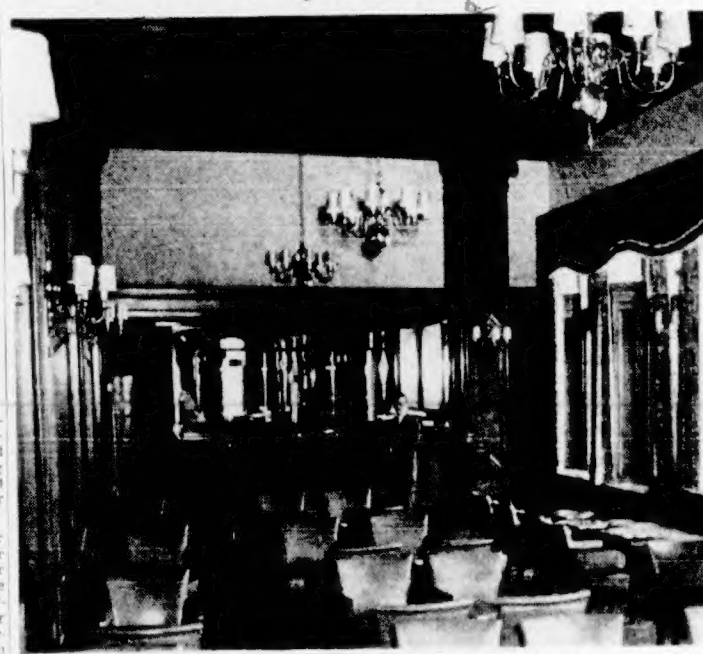

"Personally, I don't believe the Chinese Reds can take Formosa or that they can even come anywhere near doing so," Lodge said.

In a speech before the 10th annual Amvets convention, Lodge suggested that the Communist threat was "designed to take the minds of the millions of starving Chinese off their misery—in particular the ghastly floods which are devastating that unhappy land."

"Much of the flood damage could have been prevented if the Chinese Reds had been as interested in helping the Chinese people through public works as they are in imperialistic and expansionist war," he said.

The American diplomat also noted that the Peiping government's threat was made "at the height of the recent curious festivities in the Red Chinese capital."

Face-Lifting on Coronet Room

Head bartender Cliff Leslie surveys his new domain.

$85,000 Job Nearly Done

Empress Cocktail Lounge To Be Opened Wednesday

The Empress Hotel's new $85,000 Coronet Room cocktail lounge will open Wednesday morning.

The bar, which occupies the former library, will accommodate 165 to 214 patrons.

Interior design was handled by E. V. Potter of Toronto. "What we have attempted to do is to give the room a face-lifting," says Mr. Potter.

He added that many problems were confronted in attempting to work the design into the general decor of the hotel.

Blue and red are the dominant colors in the oblong-shaped bar. Customers will occupy leather chairs and couches in both colors.

A striking carpet, designed by Mr. Potter, has coronets, Tudor roses and wreaths worked into the pattern. The drapes are patterned "with a modern conception of a Jacobean design," he adds.

Jacobean-style lights are a feature of the room. Several hang, chandelier-like, from the ceiling while others are bracketed to six massive pillars that line the room in pairs, and to the walls.

On one side the windows look onto the hotel gardens, while a view of the Inner Harbor is available in the farthest corner from the bar.

What promises to be interesting is the "Empress Special." It is rye whisky, pineapple juice and grenadine, served in a sugared cocktail glass, says Cliff Leslie, newly-appointed head bartender, who previously worked in the Royal York Hotel in Toronto.

He is highly pleased with the bar, and thinks it is on a par with anything in Eastern Canada including the Royal York's in Toronto, and the Chateau Frontenac in Quebec.

Behind the scenes the bar equipment is the latest.

Mr. Leslie has recruited his barmen and waiters from the Empress staff and has been training them for weeks in the service bar in the kitchen.

The bar should have opened yesterday, but glass doors leading from the lobby were not ready in time.

TLC Delegates Urge Employment Action

REGINA (UPI)—After expressing fears for job prospects next winter, delegates to the annual convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada demanded Saturday that the federal government take action to increase employment.

They passed a resolution asking specifically for a program of federal public works and for encouragement of low-rental housing construction.

Earlier, the convention was told of the formation of a new union of civic employees. It is to be one of the largest in the TLC family.

The union will have 19,000 members at the outset, said Garnet Shier of Toronto, expected to be its president. It hopes to boost membership to 28,000 fairly soon, with congress co-operation.

The new organization was set up by conferences in the last few days between the TLC executive and representatives of the Federation of Public Service Employees, headed by Shier.

The 165 local groups, a loose-knit association under direct congress control, will be turned loose to unite under the name of the National Union of Public Employees as of next January 31.

The next union will be affiliated with the congress, but its collective membership will have autonomy as a "national" union. Its existing membership in British Columbia is 5,000.

The whole organizing field for civic employees within the TLC amounts to about 80,000 persons in Canada, Shier said. At an initial membership of 19,000, the union would be about the fifth largest in the 380,000-member TLC.

The congress also urged efforts be made to make the five-day week general, and also sought collective bargaining rights for federal government employees.

Pachuco Tells Of Rites

CHICAGO (UPI)—A former member of the terrorist Pachuco society yesterday told police of the group's secret rites and said one Pachuco gang even had an auxiliary for girls.

Rex Orion, 28, made the disclosures as reports of Pachuco activity spread, involving air force bases and cities across the country.

Orion said he joined the Pachucos while living in Los Angeles, the centre of the society's activity.

TEST OF "BARING"
He said he was forced to risk death to gain membership. The test required that he drive without lights over a mountain road at 80 miles an hour while another car without lights sped toward him.

The two cars missed.

"That was to prove my daring," Orion said.

Orion broke the secret oath of the society and made the disclosures as police here and in other cities, and authorities at military bases picked up a swelling number of youths branded with the Pachuco tattoo—a cross halved with dots.

Police here seized four more tattooed youths, bringing the total to 24 arrested here in three days.

NOT ALL BONA-FIDE
But police doubted that all were bona-fide Pachucos. They said many youngsters had heard of the Pachucos and had themselves tattooed with the mark "just to impress somebody."

Each dot in the Pachuco mark is supposed to indicate an arrest.

Benny Not Happy Man—Junior's in Driver's Seat

BELLEVILLE, N.J. (UPI)—Benny the Barber thought he won $56,000 on the Irish sweepstakes two months ago but today he is broke and his seven-year-old son is in the family's financial driver's seat.

Benny Ferraro said he signed his name to the sweepstakes ticket when he bought it and then as an afterthought added "Jr."

When the money was wired to a Belleville bank from Ireland Benny tried to claim it but the bank said no. It was Junior's money.

Benny went to surrogate's court and was told he would have to post a $35,000 bond to become legal guardian of the money.

"But the bondsman told me I can't use a nickel of the money for myself," he said. "Even little Benny can't get hold of it until he's 21 unless he uses part of it for his college education or something like that."

"I haven't worked since they announced the winners in June," Benny lamented. "What a blow this is!"

In anticipation of his presumed wealth Benny had taken his wife and three children on a three-week vacation to Atlantic City before he learned of his faux pas.

"I only make about $75 a week at the barber shop," he said, "and what about the $300 of our savings I spent in the back yard?"

Both Benny and Louis bought sweep tickets and agreed that if either of them should win he would split with the other.

"Louis took his family and mom and dad on a two-month vacation to California," Benny said with a grin. "When he got back the other day I told him. He got sick."

Benny said Benny Jr. has big plans for the money.

"He wants to buy bicycles for himself and all his cousins. What can I tell him? He's richer than I am and I'll have to buy him a bike out of my own savings I spent in the back yard."

Wanted for Six Murders

Brazen Gunmen Free 'Trigger' Burke In Bold Daylight Raid on Boston Jail

BOSTON (AP)—Two gunmen broke into Suffolk County Jail Saturday and freed Elmer "Trigger" Burke, notorious New York criminal, in a brazen daylight prison delivery.

Four barriers were breached by the bold pair in entering the jail only a short distance from a busy elevated train station and practically within view of hundreds of pedestrians on busy Charles Street.

The break obviously climaxed a carefully laid plan. Police believe the men worked several days preparing the break into the old jail on the bank of the Charles River.

SIX MURDERS

The escape set off an intensive manhunt throughout New England and New York since Burke is suspected of six murders in Manhattan.

New York City police were quickly alerted, especially commands on the West Side, along the waterfront. Burke reputedly has returned to his old haunts there in the past with reckless abandon.

Burke was awaiting trial for possession of a machine gun, by West Boston Bridge to Cambridge.

Police said the weapon, along with several other guns and ammunition, was found in Burke's lodgings when he was arrested last June.

Prison officials ruefully disclosed that the gunmen—wearing silk stockings over their faces—first broke a lock on a heavy steel door on the Charles Street side and then picked the lock on a thick wooden door.

An electric alarm on the second door did not go off and authorities believe the pair short-circuited it.

With those doors cleared, the men cut through two more to reach the exercise yard.

Precisely at 2:50 p.m., Burke broke away from the "exercise line" of 119 other prisoners and sprinted toward the door.

Guard James Meade saw Burke's dash and gave chase. As Meade went through the doorway, one of Burke's accomplices stopped him at gunpoint, threatening to "blow your head off."

Burke and his accomplices dashed through the prepared exit route to the street and leaped into a waiting automobile. The car, described as a 1934 Buick, swung into the line of traffic and sped across near bridge on the other side of the river.

Several main highways in Cambridge lead to western Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine.

The American diplomat also noted that the Peiping government's threat was made "at the height of the recent curious festivities in the Red Chinese capital."
